Philippines' Parley Call:

'Let Asians Find Own Solutions'

Guarantee

Offer Made By PGE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Pacific Great Eastern Railway Wednesday made a new contract offer to 400 non-operating employees after receiving 48-hour strike notice.

General manager J. S. Broadbent wired Dave Chapman, spokesman for the Federation of PGE Employees, with the proposal:

"The PGE will pay the settlement finally reached with the national railways and guarantee each regular tradesman a minimum of 50 cents an hour (over two years) and each non-tradesman and apprentice a minimum increase of 40 cents." Chapman was not available for comment Wednesday.

Corrections Boss Says:

Oakalla Situation Nasty, Explosive

VANCOUVER (CP) — Selwyn Rockborough Smith, director of corrections for British Columbia, said Tuesday a "nasty, explosive" situation exists at Oakalla prison farm.

Mr. Smith made the remark during an interview following the recommendation by a coroner's inquest that a full-time psychiatrist be hired to spot inmates with suicidal tendencies. There have been 186 suicide attempts in less than three years at the prison, the inquest was told.

Mr. Smith said Oakalla is outmoded and "belongs to another era."

He said the prison needs more and better-trained staff of all kinds, not just one psychiatrist. Staff turnover is 20 per cent a year, he said, largely because guards can leave and earn more money driving a truck.

He said most of the hysteria centred in the remand wing where people are held after being remanded by the courts. They cannot work or take part in prison life because they have not been convicted, he said. All they can do is sit and brood.

Russia Charges U.S.-China Pact

HONG KONG (AP) — Travelers from China reported Wednesday new clashes between Red Guards and farmers in the Shanghai area, while China hinted there is discord and opposition in its "people's liberation army."

In a related development, Moscow published accusations that China and the United States have entered into a secret deal over Viet Nam. This was a switch. The Chinese have contended there is a U.S.-Soviet deal on Viet Nam.

The new clashes between the Red Guards and farmers were described as "intense and bloody." The visitors said Mme. Mao Tse-tung, first deputy leader of China's cultural revolution, had to go to Shanghai to restrain the guards. She is the wife of the Chinese Communist party chairman.

"I AM CAPITALIST!" Many businessmen were reported to have been seen parading in Shanghai streets, shouting "I am a capitalist!" The hint of discord among officers and men in the army came in a front-page editorial in Liberation Army Daily, the newspaper of Lin Biao's defence ministry. It indicated the discord centred on the determination of the Communist party to wield total control over the armed forces.

"RESPECT FIGHTERS" Lin has emerged as at least second to Mao Tse-tung in the hierarchy in the current Chinese political upheavals.

The editorial, carried in a broadcast dispatch by the New China news agency, urged the party cadres to abide by Mao's instructions in their work and

Camp: 'We're eating our young'

TORIES IN TURMOIL

'Resign As Of Today'

OTTAWA (CP) — Gordon Churchill, former Conservative defence minister and a close friend of Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, called on Dalton Camp Wednesday to resign as president of the Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. Churchill, MP for Winnipeg South Centre and seat-mate of Mr. Diefenbaker, issued a copy of his telegram to the press. It said:

"Your immediate resignation as national president should be submitted to the national executive. You have flagrantly abused the privilege of your position in making a public attack on our leader."

"You have no authority from the membership at large for your action. For a national president to attempt to undermine and disrupt his party, under the specious guise of attacking the leadership of the Liberal party as well, is too obvious a subterfuge."

"As a private member of the party you may speak your mind as you see fit. As national president, you have a duty to strengthen the party, not weaken it."

"You have taken advantage of your temporary position in a manner that admits of no excuse or explanation. Your resignation should be made effective today."

Mr. Diefenbaker was expected to reply to the Camp onslaught in a speech in Toronto today.

In Halifax Finlay MacDonald, national vice-president of the Progressive Conservative party, said Wednesday night he was prepared to resign if the majority of party members in the Atlantic provinces agreed with Gordon Churchill's call for the resignation of national president Dalton Camp.

Bonner Suggests Price Cut For B.C. Lumber

The British Columbia lumber industry might have to cut its prices in order to meet sharply changing world market conditions, Attorney-General Bonner warned Wednesday.

A drastic slump in lumber sales which has brought layoffs of hundreds of men and closure of some small companies in B.C. is "almost wholly beyond our control," he said in an interview.

Mr. Bonner said "ultra-nationalistic-minded Canadians" should be reminded that this nation's economy is directly related to foreign markets, and that there is little Canada can do to counteract the current tight-money situation in the Western world.

HOUSING PROBLEM The basic problem is an over-provision of housing in the United States, accompanied by a tight-money situation which brought about a very difficult credit structure so far as prospective buyers are concerned, he said.

There was in fact an actual scarcity of money available for mortgage financing in the U.S., he said.

This brought about a slowdown in construction, even though there is a rising demand for housing in the United States.

B.C. HIT "The impact on B.C. has been to reduce the possibilities for sale in the U.S., and this is now beginning to back up in various facets of the industry," said the attorney-general.

Mr. Bonner declined to speculate on how long the lumber slump would last, but suggested the solution lay within the industry itself.

FLEXIBILITY NEEDED B.C.'s prosperity was "not an automatic condition" but a "very hard won" achievement, and although the tight-money situation which the government has been talking about for the past 12 months "will produce some bite," industry can help "if it has enough leeway to adjust its prices abroad."

"We have to consider the necessity of being flexible. We must roll to meet the sharply changing market conditions," Mr. Bonner said.

Reappraisal Call Churns Reaction

MONTREAL (CP)—Dalton Camp, national president of the Progressive Conservative Party, said Wednesday night "we're becoming political cannibals and we're eating our young."

Addressing the Montreal Young Progressive Conservative Party Association, Mr. Camp reiterated statements made in Toronto Tuesday night and called for a reappraisal of the party leadership at next November's national convention in Ottawa.

MANDATE Referring to Conservative Party leader Diefenbaker's statement that he plans to lead the party in the next general election, the national president said:

"I have absolutely no quarrel with that provided there is a mandate from the party. It's important that there is a mandate or there is a change."

Mr. Camp, a 41-year-old Toronto public relations man, raised an uproar from sectors in the Conservative party when he told the Toronto Junior Board of Trade that there never has been a more urgent time than now for an appraisal of the present leadership.

His statement touched off mixed reaction from fellow party members and resulted in a call from Gordon Churchill, defence minister in the former Diefenbaker government, that he resign as national president.

SEES RE-ELECTION Mr. Camp told reporters prior to Wednesday night's meeting that he hadn't yet received Mr. Churchill's telegram but added: "I don't plan to resign as a result of the telegram."

He said he will stand for re-election as national president at the Ottawa convention Nov. 13-15 provided he feels that he has the support of the party delegates.

Asked if he would consider his re-election an endorsement of his position on the party leadership appraisal stand, Mr. Camp replied:

"Oh, yes."

HEADING WEST Mr. Camp said he will speak in Charlottetown Saturday and then will return to Toronto before heading for meetings in Alberta. He hopes to visit all 10 provinces before the November convention.

Mr. Diefenbaker, just past his 71st birthday, had no spoken comment at Ottawa Wednesday but an aide said he showed "monumental indifference" to the Camp proposal. He recently predicted he will win a federal election next year.

Grits Study Review Of the Top

OTTAWA (CP) — A resolution calling for periodic review of leadership is among a number of constitutional proposals that will go before next month's Liberal policy conference.

Senator John Nichol, president of the National Liberal Federation, said Wednesday constitutional proposals will be dealt with by a committee in public sessions during the Oct. 10-13 policy conference.

If recommended to plebiscite sessions it would be debated on the floor before a vote.

Senator Nichol said he believes Prime Minister Pearson favors the idea of periodic leadership reviews.

But Cupid's Arrow Finds Mayor

Marriage Fair Rang Few Wedding Bells

BIARRITZ, France (UPI) — It all started amid the confusion and publicity of the famous "Marriage Fair" but just like all fairy stories, it had a happy ending.

Francis Pommerie, 32, and his wife Elise checked into a luxury hotel here Wednesday night to start their honeymoon as guests of the management. The luxurious setting was a far cry from the simplicity of the village of Esparrros, in the Pyrenees, where Francis wooed and won Elise in the middle of one of Europe's biggest publicity stunts of the year.

Twenty thousand bachelors and spinsters crammed Esparrros one weekend last May when Mayor Pierre Balagna announced the "Marriage Fair." The object, he said, was to find brides for lonely bachelors in the village where there hadn't been a wedding for five years.

Esparros got lots of publicity but not many wedding bells from the event, but the Pommerie wedding, which took place Tuesday, was regarded as a step in the right direction.

Even more dividends may accrue from the fair. Pommerie disclosed Tuesday, Mayor Balagna is himself engaged — although he won't say who the lucky girl is.

Royal, said a leader's mandate should be renewed every two years or so.

Walter Dinsdale, former northern affairs minister, said the question of Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership had been dealt with two years ago—at another party meeting—and since then there hadn't been any evidence of "any great agitation in this regard."

Heath Macquarrie (Queens) said the leadership question was a legitimate one for Mr. Camp to raise as national president. Michael Starr, former labor minister, was cool to the idea of putting the leadership up for confirmation.

"There are people who like the methods of policy employed by the Conservative party and others who don't. Mr. Camp definitely falls in the 'don't' category."

But Albert Walker, Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for the same Ottawa riding as Mr. Starr, said Mr. Diefenbaker should be prepared to "place his leadership on the line."

Gordon Aiken, MP for Parry Sound-Muskoka said he has not changed his view expressed 1½ years ago that both Mr. Diefenbaker and Prime Minister Pearson should retire.

"I believe they have adopted and this is not conducive to good government. Since there has been such a large amount of controversy concerning the Progressive Conservative leadership, I think the annual party meeting Nov. 13-16 should have the matter brought before it."

Dr. P. B. Rynard (Simcoe East) was non-committal:

"People are looking for messiahs everywhere to give leadership, and we're not getting them anywhere."

SECRET BALLOT

Richard A. Bell, former immigration minister, had no comment but Thomas M. Bell (Saint John's) said he supports Mr. Camp's bid and favored a secret ballot.

D. K. MacPherson, an executive member of the Regina branch of the Conservatives, called Mr. Camp's discussion of the leadership platitudeous and added:

"Certainly it's time for appraisal, but party leadership should be constantly appraised."

In Montreal, Georges Valade, Conservative MP from Montreal Ste. Marie, expressed agreement Wednesday night with statements by Mr. Camp.

"NO ATTRACTION"

Mr. Valade, long an advocate of party reorganization in Quebec, said Mr. Churchill's statement is an example of what the top men in the Conservative party now do to other party members seeking party renewal.

Mr. Valade described the party's loss of a seat in a Monday byelection in Nicolet-Yamaska as "certainly an indication our leadership has no attraction for the public."

Closed Meetings with Halifax Forces

Hellyer's Reception Mixed

By IAN MACKENZIE

HALIFAX (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer received a mixed reception Wednesday when he met officers and men of Maritime Command and discussed government unification policies for the armed forces.

However, he told a news conference the face-to-face meetings had been a "most rewarding experience" and added that he has no intention of changing unification plans.

He said he found some concern among the 5,000 officers and men he addressed in three separate groups in the Stadacona naval base gymnasium.

PRESS BARRED

"I think the concern was greater among the officers than among the men."

Reporters were barred from the meetings and the base during the visit.

Several seamen who attended the first session said the minister was booed at various intervals. Another said there were murmurs, while yet another said he felt Mr. Hellyer had "entertained every question and answered as honestly as he could."

ORDER RESTORED

Petty officers and officers who attended the other two sessions described the minister's reception as courteous but cool.

One officer, however, said that during the address to officers "it was only the good offices of the admiral's staff, Admiral J. C. O'Brien, sea operation chief — which restored order when the defence minister, literally-speaking, insulted the officers."

Several sailors said Mr. Hellyer told them there will be a general pay increase for all armed forces next month. The increase would satisfy most men.

WORD IN 10 DAYS

Mr. Hellyer declined to discuss the pay question at the conference except to say an announcement would be made within 10 days.

Mr. Hellyer said he did not notice any vocal opposition at the meetings which also were attended by a scattering of army and air force personnel.

"I didn't hear it if there was any."

APPLAUSE

A leading seaman said the only round of applause the minister received while addressing the lower ranks was when he granted a "make and mend" — a naval term for a holiday.

The seaman added with a grin that the minister had to ask what a make and mend was before giving the go-ahead.

Sailors said that Mr. Hellyer told them the pay boost would bring wages for single men to the same level as married men and that men with technical experience would have higher rates.

Some officers said their questions ranged from how machinery to enable them to leave the service would work to comments on the destruction of naval traditions through unification. The officer making the latter comments was said to have been cheered by his fellow officers.

Mr. Hellyer hopes to "spell out to the public the unification proposals" on Sept. 30.

Regarding the single uniform, the defence minister told reporters he is sure "all forces will accept gracefully whatever decisions are made by the duly constituted authority."

Hectic Summer in Defence

OTTAWA (CP) — Footnotes on a hectic summer in the defence department.

The 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade in Europe has started calling itself the Canadian Army National Force (Europe). This is to better distinguish itself from other NATO military forces.

NORAD headquarters

Colorado Springs, Colo., has an underground "yacht club." The club occupies a rowboat which is used to launch the two huge water reservoirs inside Cheyenne Mountain where the headquarters is located.

The army has tried conducting bilingual staff conferences. In at least two cases, officers speaking only English walked out, saying their time was being wasted.

The new headquarters of the 14-nation Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe, at Casteau, Belgium, will cost $43,000,000. This is about the estimated cost of Canada's new defence headquarters.

The defence department is still considering re-engagement bonuses for men who leave the services and then re-enlist. This would make it possible for a man who was given a fat bonus when compulsorily retired to rejoin and get another bonus.

told them their basic attitude toward the fighting men must be "to respect them." The party cadres are the political commissars who are the party's watchdogs in the armed forces.

In another broadcast, the agency said the Red Guards are doing their utmost to facilitate the activities of the revolutionary teachers and students visiting the capital to exchange experience in the "great proletarian cultural revolution."

Growing numbers of teenage Red Guards were leaving the cities to join in the autumn harvest in response to Mao's call, the broadcast added.

In Moscow, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia carried stories from the foreign press saying that Peking and Washington had agreed to avoid a military clash.

Izvestia quoted the Kyoto news agency of Japan as saying Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi had told a Japanese delegation in Peking that China "is not necessarily dismissing the thought of talking with the United States" on Viet Nam. The newspaper, however, did not note that Chen Yi's remarks were made Sept. 6.

Izvestia also quoted the French weekly Tribune de Nation as saying that Washington had been given to understand there was little danger of serious Chinese intervention in Viet Nam and this played a big part in President Johnson's decision to bomb the Hanoi and Haiphong areas of North Viet Nam.

Agence France-Press also was quoted as saying that informed observers reported that China and the U.S. agreed in Cambodia to settle at Warsaw to avoid an open conflict.

terest of the Soviet Union, contributed vitally to the peace and stability of the Indian subcontinent."

"In the spirit of that achievement, Malaysia, Thailand and the Philippines... hereby renew their appeal to all Asian countries and the Soviet Union to act with equal boldness of imagination by calling a new Tashkent for Southeast Asia."

THANT CRITICAL

Thant has criticized the idea of an Asian peace conference on Viet Nam as unrealistic because its three would-be sponsors are all committed to the same ideology.

Marcos made no reference to this criticism.

Explaining his scheme for an Asian regional group, Marcos said it "would take the form of a political forum to which urgent issues like the Viet Nam crisis could be referred."

"No such forum exists today, yet the need for it is pressing. The principal that the Asian peoples themselves are under an inescapable obligation to devise Asian solutions to Asian problems is at once so just and so indisputably right that Hanoi and Peking will be under strong moral obligation to relax their hostile attitude."

Nerves Identical for Thick and Thin

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I have read that the human body needs a thin layer of fat to insulate the nerves.

I repeated this to my grown son (who is underweight) and he said the idea was false.

Is there a relationship between thinness and "nerves"? L.L.

I'm afraid you are confusing nerve tracks of the body with "nerves" in the sense of nervousness or emotional problems.

Am I right in guessing that you're a nervous individual and you are hoping that if he eats more, it will help him?

The answer is no. Emotional tension does not depend on whether a person is thin or fat. For just one example, consider the compulsive eater, the person who eats too much because eating is for him a reaction from tension. Others drink too much, smoke too much, lose their tempers, go into sulks or have other compulsive reactions.

The complex networks of nerves, which are the "signaling system of the body," perform such things as transmitting sensations (pain, sight, sound, smell, etc.) and controlling muscular activity. When you move your hand, certain nerves tell the appropriate muscles to contract or relax. These nerve trunks or chains of nerves do indeed, have a thin protective sheath which contains fat, but a thin person has these sheaths just as well as a fat person.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a virgin become pregnant? I stopped my boy friend before we went all the way, but now my period is late and my friends tell me I could be pregnant. I've prayed and am so scared and awfully nervous. — MIMI A.C.

This question comes up often enough to make it obvious that the younger generation, supposedly so sophisticated, misses the point about "going all the way."

Pregnancy can occur when ever an ovum, or female egg cell, is present, and is penetrated by a male sperm cell. Although an emission contains millions of sperm cells, only one is needed for pregnancy.

"Going all the way" is a somewhat vague term, but the important question is whether just one sperm cell found its way into the vaginal tract and to the ovum. These cells are vigorous and can "swim" or be carried quite a distance through the vaginal area. Such pregnancies are rare but they are possible, and every girl should be told of this possibility.

The sexual drive exists to procreate the race. Any sexual experimentation or play that permits the sperm cell to reach an ovum permits Nature to take its course and cause pregnancy. Yes, a virgin can become pregnant.

Battle Waged To Save Surveyor

PASADENA (UPI) — U.S. scientists waged a desperate battle against the clock Wednesday night to stabilize the tumbling Surveyor 2 spacecraft before it destroys itself in a crash-landing on the moon.

Working against a projected lunar impact of 8:43 p.m. PDT today, project officials tried repeatedly without success to ignite the No. 3 Vernier engine. Without it, neither a soft landing nor completion of the mission was possible.

Third tests will be continued on an hourly basis until either of two events occur, according to surveyor project officials.

POWER DRAINING
One was that the repeated tests would drain all electrical power in a battery aboard the spacecraft, if continued through the night, by 6 or 8 a.m. and silence the craft altogether.

The second possibility was that repeated tests might "speed up the tumbling, etc."

and cause mechanical damage to the sensitive equipment aboard Surveyor.

FAILS TO FIRE
Radio commands were flashed to Surveyor, calling for the Vernier, or steering, engines to fire for five one-half-second bursts followed by two-second bursts. But the No. 3 Vernier engine did not respond.

Because of the violent tumbling motion, Surveyor's solar panel cannot be locked onto the sun for renewed power and the repeated tests were using power direct from the battery.

Officials gave no indication of writing off the Surveyor mission. The third in the series of seven Surveyor missions was expected in January of 1967.

Bees Working Double Time

After what threatened to be a bad year for honey, the bees have finally got a break.

Local beekeepers say a summer that was predominantly cool and wet cut into honey production, but bees have been working harder than ever since the weather cleared in mid-August.

"We had an excellent spring bloom, but the summer was exceedingly cloudy and rainy, which meant there weren't as many blooms as usual," said a Victoria man who keeps more than 100 hives as a pastime.

However, the last three or four weeks of sunny weather have brought out many blossoms and the bees have been working overtime to store up honey, which under natural conditions would be their winter food supply.

CCF Cabinet Minister Lived Here Since 1960

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday for John H. Sturdy, 73, who died Tuesday.

Mr. Sturdy was a cabinet minister in the CCF government in Saskatchewan and a well-known organizer for the Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation.

He was the first general secretary of the teachers' federation between 1935 and 1940.

PREMIER'S ASSISTANT
He served as minister of rehabilitation and reconstruction in the 1944 CCF government, and then as minister of social welfare and assistant to the premier.

Ill-health forced his resignation from public life, and he retired here in 1960.

Mr. Sturdy was born near Goddard, Ont. He served in the line during the First World War and on his return from duty took a teaching post. Later he became principal of a school in Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., where he served for 12 years.

Sidewalks To Shrink

In order to try to eliminate curbside parking in the 2600 block Douglas Street, between Kings and Hillside, three parking bays will be built, City Engineer James Garnett said Wednesday.

Sidewalk will be torn up and narrowed in front of North Ward School, and two more bays will be installed or enlarged, one in front of Victoria Press Ltd. and the other near the Scott Block.

Fewer parking spaces will be available in the block, Mr. Garnett said, and all will be in bays. It is hoped to give the same treatment to the Douglas Street block between Kings and Bay early in 1967.

An effort will be made to save seven sidewalk no-parking spaces two years ago as part of the downtown beautification plan, but this may not be possible because of the narrowed sidewalk.

Print from Door Clue in Slaying

CHICAGO (UPI) — Investigators turned up an unidentified fingerprint in the Charles H. Percy mansion Wednesday after the Republican Senatorial candidate and his family left the Chicago area to try to recover from the shock of Valerie Percy's bludgeoning slaying.

Police Chief Robert M. Daley of suburban Kenilworth said the print was found on a door in a new "tear-the-house apart" search for clues to the killer who beat and stabbed 21-year-old Valerie to death last Sunday.

NO MATCH
The print could not be matched with the fingerprints of Percy family members and known visitors to the home, Daley said. The police chief said several "good" unidentified fingerprints are now being analyzed in the Chicago police department's crime laboratory.

Investigators appealed to police throughout the nation for their aid in tracking down the killer. Police were asked to send the Kenilworth investigative team information on any attacks upon women similar to the bludgeoning slaying of Valerie. They were also urged to send along fingerprints of suspects in such cases.

NO DISCOVERIES
The police chief said dragging of Lake Michigan off the Percys' private beach Wednesday produced no discoveries. Police still have not found the chisel, fireplace poker or other blunt instrument which the killer is believed to have used to inflict fatal blows.

NOT 'DEAD'
"We have no significant material evidence," Daley told newsmen. But he added, "I would not say I'm at a dead end."

Percy, his wife and four surviving children left the Chicago area for an undisclosed spot. Percy's campaign manager announced that political activities in the campaign to unseat veteran Democratic Sen. Paul H. Douglas were "suspended until Mr. Percy is ready to resume."

Funeral services will be held at 3:15 p.m. today for Robert N. Grubb, 71, of 1886 St. Ann.

Before his retirement in 1960, Mr. Grubb was principal of Quadra Street elementary school for 15 years.

He was born on Galiano Island in 1885, came to Victoria in 1907 and began teaching in 1915.

Mr. Grubb taught at Central junior high and was vice-principal of Quadra and then Victoria West elementary schools.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret, a daughter, Mrs. A. McTaggart; three granddaughters, a brother and three sisters.

Separatists Warn Queen

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Bourgault, leader of le Rassemblement pour l'indépendance nationale, said Tuesday that if the Queen receives special treatment during her visit to the world's fair next year he does not know what will happen, "but anything is possible."

Mr. Bourgault said in an interview the position of his separatist party on the subject of the Queen's visit is clear.

"If she comes to Expo as Queen of England and she is received in the same way as other foreign sovereigns who honor us with visits during Expo, nothing will happen, there won't be a stir. But if, on the other hand, she enjoys special treatment, I don't know what will happen, but anything is possible."

Mr. Bourgault said he wanted it to be clear that the words "anything is possible" were in no way intended as a menace.

NO URGING
He denied that the RIN has for some months been urging the people to violence during the Queen's visit.

In the last issue of l'Indépendance, the party's bi-monthly publication, an unsigned article suggested the possibility of the Queen's assassination when she came to Quebec.

U.S. Jets Down Two More MiGs

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Air Force pilots shot down two Communist MIG-17s, probably downed a third and damaged an advanced model MIG-21 in a series of aerial battles over North Viet Nam Wednesday, the U.S. command said today.

In the heaviest aerial combat of the war, American pilots reported seven separate encounters with the Russian-designed MIGs northeast of Hanoi.

21 MIGS DOWNED
The pilots ran their score of MIG kills for the war to 21. The most recent MIG announced shot down was last Friday.

The U.S. command made no mention of any U.S. losses in Wednesday's aerial duels.

At the same time, a U.S. military spokesman reported American marines forced entrenched North Vietnamese troops to retreat after heavy fighting 10 miles northwest of Dong Ha and just south of the demilitarized zone.

DEFOLIATION STARTED
The spokesman also disclosed that American planes have begun defoliation of the heavy jungle in the southern half of the zone.

The apparent objective is to clear the area of jungle and foliage to expose North Vietnamese positions for U.S. air strikes in the zone.

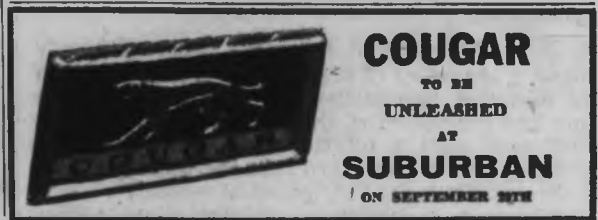

31 KILLED
The spokesman said the marines, reinforced by other ground troops and supported by air and artillery strikes, pushed the North Vietnamese out of a fortified strongpoint and sent them retreating through trenches and tunnels.

Marines killed 31 North Vietnamese. Marine casualties were light.

Flicker of Hope

THERE is nothing surprising in the suggestion of despatches from Paris that Peking refuses to allow Ho Chi Minh's administration in Hanoi to negotiate towards a cessation of hostilities in South Viet Nam in any circumstances. It would appear to have been the posture of China from the beginning.

What is new in the French appreciation of the situation is that North Viet Nam and China are deeply split over the question of opening peace talks.

The Hanoi government, according to the French, would be willing to go to the peace table prior to the withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Viet Nam, providing Washington gives a pledge of a pull-out by a specific date.

It must be assumed, then, that Hanoi was simply parroting the policy of Peking when it has insisted in the past that negotiations are contingent upon an American evacuation of the peninsula. To the Oriental mind such a retreat would entail the most damaging loss of face. And it is just as unthinkable to the Americans for very practical reasons.

But if these French reports reflect the honest attitude of Hanoi, then they provide the most hopeful development since the original confrontation, at least for conversations.

Washington would be unlikely to hesitate to give a pledge of withdrawal at a specific date providing, first, that there is a general disengagement, and second, that genuine negotiations are in progress. President Johnson has said as much. He has said he will set a timetable for withdrawal as soon as North Viet Nam has set a schedule for cessation of infiltration.

There is still the Viet Cong, of course. Presumably they would have to agree to a cease-fire and an end of terrorism before the Americans would consider the wider prospects of bilateral withdrawal.

Would the Viet Cong take orders from Hanoi and go along with a truce? Or would they heed the probable protestations of Peking and continue to fight, thus effectively blocking the road to negotiation?

There is still the possibility that Peking would intervene with arms, even by the invasion of North Viet Nam, rather than allow the Americans to escape from their involvement. But it would be a grave risk. While it might give a Chinese-North Vietnamese-Viet Cong alliance a formidable front, it would invite American retaliation against China's heartland by bombardment.

Such a desperate gamble would risk war on a massive scale, its ultimate extent and outcome matters of fearful conjecture.

No, if Hanoi is willing and Washington is prepared to make the pledge required, China is likely to dissociate itself from the peace proposals and back away from disaster with the best possible grace.

There Is But One

AMBIVALENCE is a common feature in the political realm but it was amusing to hear Premier Johnson of Quebec complain at the recent federal-provincial tax-sharing conference that Ottawa was behaving as though the BNA Act didn't exist. He ignores it himself when it suits his purpose.

At the close of this same conference he reiterated the two-nation concept that dominates Quebec thinking these days, a violation itself of the act he cites when the latter is convenient to his argument.

Search though he will Mr. Johnson won't find anything in the BNA Act that substantiates the theme of two nations. Confederation was the union of several parts of "British North America" into one dominion. Neither does it bear out the thesis expressed on occasion by Prime Minister Pearson of two founding races.

Quebec in 1867 was merely a province of Canada, as it is today. And if the BNA Act is applicable to tax-sharing it applies equally when it comes to Canadian nationality.

But if there is to be one nation that is a two-nation entity, as Quebec would have it in contradiction of the Gallic logic supposed to distinguish French dialects, even this leaves a lot of Canadians out in the cold.

There is a sizeable number of citizens all across the land, running into millions, whose birth or heritage is neither British nor French but European. They could be termed in a collective sense to represent a third nation if this divisive contention of multiple nationhood is pursued to the limit.

And this simply shows that the two-nation obsession of Mr. Johnson—or political credo—is nonsense. There is only one nation in this country—that of Canada as a whole—and the sooner this fact is accepted by all the better for its future well-being.

Five Voices

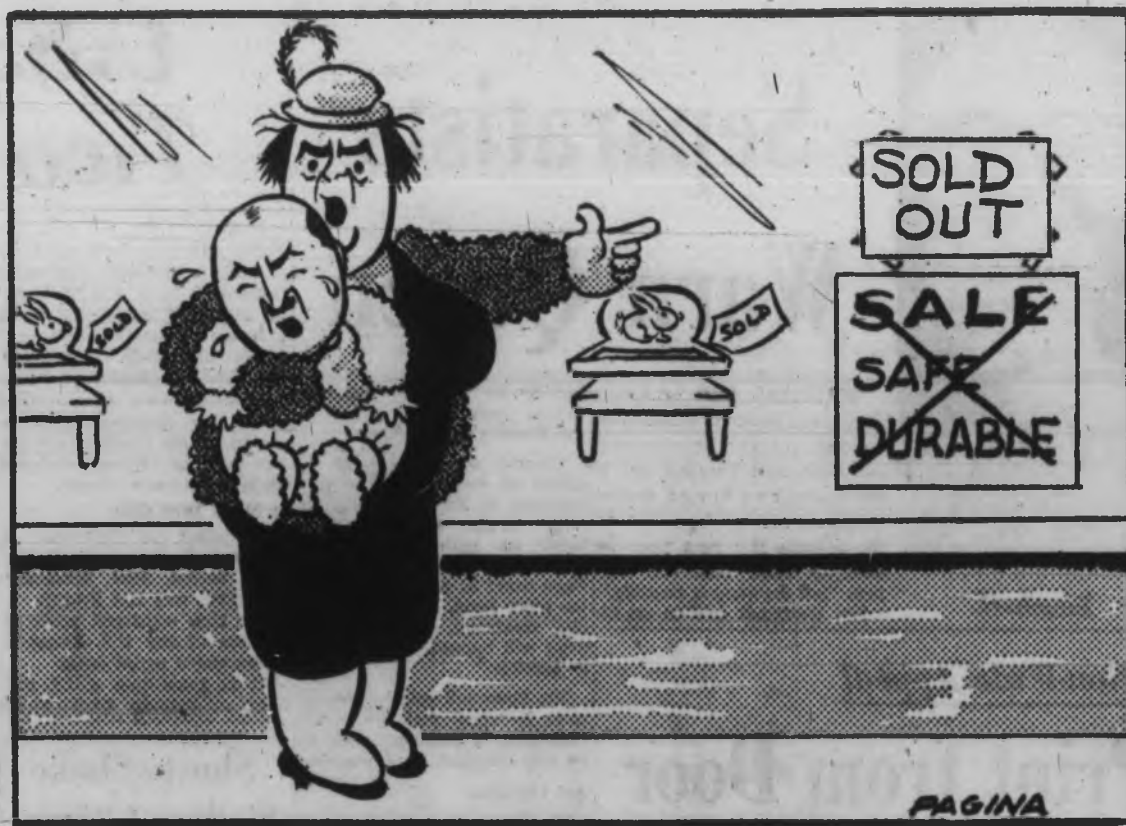

REEVE HUGH CURTIS complains because the municipality was "chopped into pieces" in the redistribution of provincial ridings, and parts of it are now represented by all five of the members of the legislature whose constituencies extend around the southern end of Vancouver Island. Actually it was more nipped around the edges than chopped into pieces, the greater part still being represented by Mr. Tisdale. But apart from that, Mr. Curtis's reasons for complaint seem questionable.

The reeve sees it as a disadvantage to Saanich that when the municipality has occasion to want to make its views known to the legislature it will in future have to reach all five MLAs; this situation, he says, indicates a gross disregard for established political boundaries and a distressing lack of knowledge of local problems.

But if Saanich were entitled to be represented at James Bay as a provincial political entity, so would every other sizeable municipality in B.C.—and a fair redistribution, an approximation of representation by population, would be all but impossible.

Mr. Curtis is surely not suggesting, moreover, that getting in touch with five MLAs is in any way a distressing chore for his council. There should be no difficulty about that as long as the mail still goes through.

So what harm is done if Saanich has five voices in the legislature, rather than one, and five MLAs taking an interest in problems that concern their constituents in the municipality?

THE downtown centre of the city will be decorated at Yuletide with white Christmas trees and white lights.

A pity. No one I ever spoke to last year ever favored this color scheme. They thought as did yours truly it gave the civic scene an insipid look, out of keeping with the traditional hues associated with this festive season.

For all the romantic songs about a White Christmas few people have like either a snowy vista or decorate their own home trees with nothing but white.

Red and green are the colors that best show up best and provide the proper setting. They are also much more picturesque to the beholder.

And would create more intimately the atmosphere that invites shoppers into the stores.

The Argentinian who fought in a New York square last night may have cut his hair. I don't know, this being written before his bout.

But it was a strange request that he should shorn himself of his long locks.

He isn't a slim-lim teenager who lets his hair cascade down over his shoulders, but a big husky heavyweight. And since boxers wear gloves, his opponent couldn't grab his ringlets to advantage.

And too the Argentine boxer says that like Samson his hair is his strength.

If it turns out this morn that he did dispose of his crowning glory it would be, perhaps, because someone gave him a sleeping pill and then picked up a pair of shears.

Although if he won even if crew-topped this will mean only that he wasn't like Samson after all.

Things get bigger and bigger. Like freighters of the sea.

A warning has been issued that if Pacific Coast harbors are to handle the marine giants coming into service, they'll have to be deepened.

Not long ago there was a report about the increasing size of the tankers Japan is turning out. The Japanese specialize in miniature transistors, watches, television sets, etc., but they produce massive things as well.

And it was said they are now thinking of oil carriers of half-a-million tonnes.

Imagine a 500,000-ton tanker lying off the Dallas Road and it seems almost as fantastic as going to the moon.

And where, for instance, is there a drydock that could accommodate such a monster?

Another "monster," in quotes because this term is an indignity to any self-respecting serpent, is in the news again.

To wit: the denizen of Loch Ness.

A professor has come up with the theory that this famous creature, actual or legendary, is nothing but a big-size slug. To be sure he estimates it to be 60 feet long and weighing 3,000 pounds but nevertheless...

A slug is a lowly pest whereas a sea serpent is a majestic being. I haven't even seen the Loch Ness serpent, although from a bus window I looked for him for an hour or two. Nor have I managed a glimpse of our own Caddy either.

But to be called a slug! If Oedipusaurus or his Loch Ness compatriot ever hear of this insult they'll never come to the surface again.

Washington Calling

Toward Nuclear Chaos

By MARQUIS CHILDS

AROUND that inflated symbol of Germany's fat well-being, Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, the weary old nuclear quack promises to go on again. It is more nearly a hesitation waltz which no one seems to know how to end.

Erhard is coming here next week and he is expected to not only talk with President Johnson but also with the familiar German veto. He will insist on keeping the option open over the right to exercise some authority in the use of nuclear weapons. That chills the hope the president eloquently expressed recently for an acceptable compromise with the Soviet Union on a nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

It happens that the White House has a confidential report showing the German people are not overly concerned about the nuclear question. Especially to the younger generation it is a matter of indifference whether the prestige of the new Germany is shored up by some form of nuclear sharing. This being true and the report is given wide credence, why doesn't Erhard have the courage to speak out and disclaim any interest in even the implication of a German finger on the nuclear trigger?

Sharply differing answers to this question have set off a controversy in the administration over German policy and the last remaining hope for a nuclear non-proliferation treaty. The conviction in the White House, expressed by presidential aide Bill Moyers, is that with only a minimum gesture of renunciation on Erhard's part the Russians will agree to treaty. The U.S. state department insists that Erhard must be upheld or the German political structure will collapse into a jelly of indecision with the French example and Deutschland under Allied at the end of the road.

Erhard's unease has its counterpart in a great many capitals. He is not master in his own house. The coalition in the parliament through which he governs shows signs of crumbling at the edges. His own cabinet members, notably his foreign minister, Gerhard Schroeder, and his defence minister, Kai-Uwe von Hassel, are pressing him to stand firm towards Washington at all appearances that they could resolve his political dilemma.

So Erhard is an unhappy man torn by conflicting forces. And he comes to Washington at a critical moment when the time remaining for getting agreement on a nuclear non-proliferation treaty is measured in months—six to eight months at the most. If time runs out, the U.S. will be left with the John F. Kennedy, will be out of the bottle.

With the manifold distractions, foreign and domestic, the shortness of this time span and the long-seeming futility of the disarmament talks in Geneva have been lost sight of. A reminder came from 290 citizens who in a plea to the president declared that the spread of atomic weapons by manufacture or acquisition was a greater threat to the security of the world than the Soviet Union.

It is my contention that the only, but considerable, thing which Victoria ever had to offer to the tourist trade was a charming town with a character all of its own in a beautiful setting, and that this is being ruined by the inborn yahoos of the hucksters and a small group of shopkeepers who are completely indifferent to good taste in the process of separating

Premature Jubilation

By MARK FRANKLAND, from Saigon

THE immense pool of victory that has been rung by Marshal Ky's government following the 80 per cent turn-out of voters in the Constituent Assembly elections is in danger of distracting attention from the serious political problems still facing South Viet Nam. It is worth spelling out some basic facts to understand why this is so.

In the first place, while over 4,100,000 Vietnamese over 18 years of age did go to the polls, some 3,300,000 did not. This figure is made up of the 20 per cent of the registered voters who abstained and the two million or so adults who were never registered because they live in areas under Viet Cong control.

For the election purposes it has been assumed that 7,500,000 Vietnamese are of voting age, in other words half of a total population of 15 million, and of these 5,200,000 were registered as voters.

But some U.S. officials here work on an estimated population of 17 million, arrived at by growth projections from the last census in 1960. If this were anything like accurate it would mean that considerably more than two million adult Vietnamese are under Viet Cong control, and therefore could not be registered.

If the jubilation over the 80 per cent poll hides the extent to which the Saigon government is still challenged by the Viet Cong, it is equally misleading to represent every vote cast as a vote for the government as well as against the Viet Cong. This is partly because, conditions in Viet Nam being what they are, considerable pressure was put on the people to vote.

Undoubtedly some were apprehensive about the consequences of not voting, and knew that a failure to poll could be checked on. But far more important in the long run is the chance offered by the election, however much they have been criticized, to move towards a popularly-accepted government. The military rulers in Saigon are in danger of losing this chance if they act tough and consider the election result simply as a vote of confidence in themselves.

It is for this reason that Premier Ky and the generals face their biggest political test when the Constituent Assembly meets on September 26. If they use unwisely the considerable official and unofficial power they will have over the Assembly, hopes of reaching some political consensus in South Viet Nam will once more be dashed.

For the Assembly, as the first elected body this country has had since the revolution against President Diem in 1963, has a chance of becoming a political forum that even present critics of the regime might come to respect. Also, as an elected Assembly, it could have considerable authority, for all its of a fully-limited function of constitution-making, vis-a-vis a government that has, of course, never been elected.

It remains to be seen whether Premier Ky and his colleagues will have both the patience and the foresight to put up with an Assembly of this kind. Certainly this seems to be the most hopeful way of eventually producing a South Vietnamese government that arouses more than just apathy in the majority of its people.

But it must be said that the basic facts of political life here, which the election has not changed one jot, will make such an outcome hard to achieve. This is primarily because the army is the one true power group in South Viet Nam. The political and religious groups are either fragmented, disorganized, or both. They can withhold their support from a military government, but they cannot at the moment bring it down, let alone replace it, given the conditions of a country at war.

The temptation of Air Marshal Ky's government to use the Constituent Assembly to legalize the military's retention of power, in one form or another, under a constitutional veneer, is their taste, will therefore be great. In such circumstances jubilation over an 80 per cent turn-out at the polls is likely to prove premature.

Today's tourist from today's should like to make the following comments:

1. It seems curious to me, as a retired businessman of some 30 years experience, why the insurance companies should compete so much for car insurance if such a business is so hazardous and unprofitable and why they should be as opposed to a provincial insurance agency.

2. The Liberal premier of Saskatchewan, Ross Thatcher — an ardent convert to so-called private enterprise — has not taken steps since he assumed the premiership to scrap the provincial car insurance plan which was instituted by the CCF government. Surely if the provincial plan is so unsatisfactory Mr. Thatcher would have taken steps to make a change to private enterprise.

3. Your correspondent states that auto insurance premiums have only increased 25 per cent from 1950 to 1964. If such a statement is correct I can only surmise that insurance premiums prior to 1950 were altogether too high.

Ronald Reagan

A Formidable Champion

By PHILIP DEANE

Look, I was in a union and was its president six times. I am not against labor or against unemployment insurance. I've fought for these things. And out came the anecdotes, with complete sincerity and conviction, attributes that make Mr. Reagan a formidable champion.

He does not use sarcasm about persons, as Goldwater did. Reagan only attacks abstract such as "government." His bite is always mitigated by a smile, his biggest attacks by a disarming anecdote and the reference to the poor boy past. He's, in fact, the personification of the American dream.

His father was a shoe salesman. Ronald Reagan grew up in the depression, worked his way through a small college, playing football, got his first job as sports announcer because of his athletic prowess. He was a Democrat of the New Deal school which won, some when I am elected. Mr. Reagan said, "It is absurd to believe that I could be a bigot. Long before Negro athletes were accepted generally, I was playing football with a Negro boy and he was my buddy. I stayed at my house. I was brought up to be incapable of prejudice. Next to me in the line, on the team, was a Jewish boy and on the other side was a Soot Presbyterian... Welfare? Reagan matters.

Mongolia, Siberia China's Targets?

The march of events tends to destroy widely held theories, such as the one that China is waiting for the excuse to tangle with the United States and suck it into destruction in Southeast Asia. If excuse is required, the war in Viet Nam provides plenty of opportunity, including the American public acknowledgement — for the first time — that it may have breached Chinese air space with combat planes. But while China gives strong support to the Viet Cong and hobbles the Americans with words, it shows no evidence of seeking a direct showdown.

Undoubtedly, internal political commotion and the rise of the Red Guards to sweep out every last particle of foreign influence are taking up much of Mao Tse-Tung's time and energy.

The next great event in China may be a change of guard, a change of leadership, with the successor as militant as ever, struggling to retain support of the world's greatest human mass, much of it poorly fed and hungry.

This need for food led to the theory that the Viet Nam war was a masquerade for China's real intention of seizing control of the great rice bowl of the peninsula. Sheer pressure of population would force the

By HAROLD MORRISON
From London

Chinese to surge over their borders and swamp neighboring regions offering the least resistance.

But now the latest theory heard in British quarters is that the great showdown will not be between China and the U.S. over the rice bowl of Southeast Asia but between China and the Soviet Union over the sparsely-populated land mass of Mongolia and Siberia.

In one man's view — and this man asked not to be identified — the great struggle would develop over the decades in two stages: First over Mongolia and then over Siberia.

Mongolia is about one-half the size of Europe with a population of only about 1,000,000. It once belonged to China but has been independent since 1921 and gets protection from Russia.

Last June Ching publicly complained of Sino-Mongolian frontier incidents, revived charges that the Russians have abducted Chinese citizens and that the Russians are carrying out border manoeuvres with the Chinese as the hypothetical enemies.

There is evidence that these borders are getting greater attention on both sides. But whether China would risk military entanglement is another matter.

Russia's Asian Gains May Influence Hanoi

By SIDNEY WEILAND
From Moscow

Soviet political gains are gradually isolating China's influence in the Asian Communist movement—and Moscow diplomats are asking if this may contribute eventually to a softer line on the Viet Nam war.

There is no concrete evidence for such a theory, and it remains speculative. But analysts say they believe the Communist balance has been vitally affected by China's cultural revolution, and this may have repercussions on a whole series of situations, including Viet Nam.

Publicly and privately, the Kremlin's position on the Asian war remains consistent — no solution unless the United States stops bombing and agrees to get out, no negotiations except on Hanoi's terms.

For diplomats here, the intriguing question now is to what extent Chinese influence still holds good in Hanoi.

There is a strong feeling that anxiety over China's hard-line policies may have been one reason North Viet Nam Premier Pham Van Dong came secretly to Russia early last month for consultations with Leonid Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist party's general secretary.

Ordinarily, the Russians could have been expected to publicize such high-level contacts, to back up assertions that they were giving "ever-increasing" and "all-sided" aid to Hanoi.

Thus, diplomats were left feeling that something unusual is or has been going on between Moscow and Hanoi. North Viet Nam is the only one of China's former staunch Asian allies still publicly on the sidelines in the Sino-Soviet ideological conflict. But Hanoi's relations with Moscow have become much closer since last year.

The Peking regime has consistently rejected Kremlin appeals for joint action to aid Viet Nam, and observers feel Hanoi leaders must be apprehensive as the Red Guards dictate an increasingly militant go-it-alone policy for China.

Moscow officials are convinced China is isolating itself.

These considerations, in the view of seasoned Moscow analysts, combine to suggest that events in China have produced a new fluidity in Communist inter-relations in Asia, and that somehow this could have an impact on the Viet Nam war.

Soviet Union to Surpass Year's Production Target

LAT, from Moscow

With only one-third of the year left to go, it now is safe to predict that Soviet industry will surpass the Kremlin's production target for 1966.

The government reports that the volume of Soviet industrial output during January-August was 8.1 per cent greater than in the same eight months of 1965.

The Kremlin's announced goal for 1966 was a gain of only 4.7 per cent over 1965.

But barring an unexpected, sharp upswing in industrial tempo during September-December, Soviet industry this year will record its second lowest "growth" rate in almost two decades. The lowest production gain was 7.1 per cent in 1964.

Norway's 'Mrs. Traitor'

Widow Ostracized By Entire Nation

By NINO LO BELLO, from Oslo
Special to the Colonist

The names on the doorbells are encrusted with dirt, and you can hardly read them. It's an old building at 26 Erling Skjalgssongate and it's grey and melancholy. Nobody ever goes there anymore because "Mrs. Traitor" lives there.

She lives on the second floor. Her apartment lies behind a heavy, dark green door which is bordered with complicated carvings. Few bother to climb the two flights of dark stairs to visit the woman because hers is the most despised name in Norway's history.

Maria Quisling, 64, is the widow of Vidkun Quisling, the most hated man in Norwegian annals. The name Quisling is a synonym for traitor and has taken its place in the dictionary with a small q.

Some Norwegians are content to let Fru (Mrs.) Quisling live the rest of her life out. Though she was arrested on charges of having collaborated with her husband and eventually cleared, a lot of people in Norway associate her (mostly because of the name) with one of the blackest pages in their history.

Unconcerned as to whether she, too, double-crossed her country, they still refer to her as "Mrs. Traitor." She is forced to live in a world where nobody wants anything to do with her. Consequently, she never leaves the apartment, not even during the summer months. A part-time cleaning woman does her shopping. Her only income is from a small widow's pension.

Fru Quisling's shabby, dimly-lit living room is filled with photographs of her husband.

"His name is the only thing I have left," said Maria Quisling. "The events that engulfed my husband cannot be refuted, but history has not been entirely fair to him. Vidkun Quisling was misunderstood, and his country seems erroneously to have settled the final score on him. The sins of Hitler and Nazism have been made to become all his."

Mrs. Quisling, a Russian, met her husband in Moscow in the mid-20s while she was working as a translator. In 1929 he took her to Norway with him, and they moved into the apartment she now occupies. Himself a hater of Communism and Russian methods, Vidkun Quisling fell under the influence of theories involving the superiority of the Nordic races.

Quisling

As he became fascinated with such political and philosophical rot, he took a more active role in Norway's public life. He started a society for the promotion of his ideals called the Nasjonal Samling, but more and more his methods and symbols took on the style of Hitler.

In April 1940 when King Haakon and the Norwegian government fled Oslo to avoid capture by the Germans, Quisling bluffed his way into an Oslo radio station, went on the air and proclaimed himself prime minister. He successfully ordered the Norwegian army not to fight the Germans.

Before long collaborating with the Nazis, Quisling moved into a 46-room mansion, and wife Maria presided over the staff as mistress of the house. In 1943 the war began to turn, and Quisling, worried about his role, tried to retire and become a clergyman like his father.

When the Norwegian resistance took over Oslo in May 1945, Quisling turned himself in. Convicted of high treason, he was shot by a firing squad on October 24, 1945 — but his name had already become a dirty word all over the world. The dictionary will keep it that way for all time.

Used Car Lots

Labor Protests
Sales of 'Junk'

Victoria Labor Council wants the provincial government to stop used-car lots from selling "junk."

At a meeting Wednesday night, the council adopted such a resolution which next will go to the annual convention of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

The proposal suggested that the provincial government require vendors to take a more responsible attitude toward their customers' safety.

DEALER RESPONSIBILITY

It says dealers should be responsible for the mechanical condition of the used cars they sell for six months after the date of sale.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Seven-month-old Shawn Olney is in critical condition after suffering serious head injuries in an accident near here Tuesday night.

Julian Olney, 33, of Saratoga Beach, died in the crash, eight miles south of Campbell River.

The baby was injured when his head crashed into the windshield.

The car left the road on a curve, sheared off a telephone pole, and finished in a ditch.

'To Wake Up'

DUBOIS, Wyo. (UPI)—The young wife of a Wyoming cowboy was stripped of her clothes, raped and murdered with a bullet in the back of the head, it was disclosed Wednesday. Her four small children stayed 24 hours around her body.

A search was launched for a ranch hand who was missing from the bunkhouse where he lived near the murder scene.

The nude body of Mrs. Barbara Tilly, 24, was found on the floor of her home late Tuesday. She had been slain with a single shot from a .25 calibre pistol.

Fremont County Sheriff C. A. McDougall said Mrs. Tilly's four children—ranging in age from one to six—had been in the home in this mountain town of 600 population all day Tuesday without knowing their mother was dead.

He said the children tried to awaken Mrs. Tilly when they woke up at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday, then watched television saw the school bus as it went by and spent the rest of the day playing around the house. "Waiting for mommy to wake up."

McDougall said the woman had been raped.

Her husband, Jim Tilly, about 30, was 20 miles away in the mountains at a cow camp, rounding up stray cattle at the time of the murder. McDougall said he had been there since last Saturday.

McDougall said a .25-calibre cartridge case was found under the body. The murder weapon was not found.

Yard to Probe JFK Death?

LONDON (Reuters)—American lawyer Mark Lane called here Wednesday for a new investigation into U.S. President Kennedy's assassination during Kennedy's cavalcade through Dallas Nov. 22, 1963.

Lane was speaking on the eve of publication in Britain of his book Rush to Judgment, which rejects the official Warren commission view that Lee Harvey Oswald—later shot to death by Jack Ruby—was the sole assassin.

All spoke of seeing shots fired from behind a wooden fence on top of a knoll to the front and right of the president's car.

The commission headed by U.S. Chief Justice Earl Warren concluded in its report that all the shots which hit the president and Governor John Connally of Texas were fired from a high window of a Dallas book depot behind the car.

In the filmed and taped interviews, the railway men spoke of seeing puffs of smoke and flashes of light from behind the fences.

Lane said the railway men's evidence had been ignored by the Warren commission.

Valachi Costs Plenty,
Brings Little Return

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Remember back in October, 1963, when Cosa Nostra strongarm Joe Valachi was telling Senate investigators all about his life of crime?

Well, since then it's cost the U.S. government $170,958 to keep him safe and comfortable at various jails. The costs ranged from a heavy outlay for special guards to protect him from underworld revenge-seekers to $6.13 for an electric heating pad. Valachi is being held at a Milan, Mich., federal prison.

To top it off, FBI director J. Edgar Hoover, in congressional testimony made public Wednesday, said the bureau learned little from Valachi. It did not already know from other sources and nobody had been convicted as a result of his information.

Carpenter Morale High

How will the provincial government react if contractors reject the Philpott formula?

"It will be very interesting to see if this government will do to employers what it has done to workers who've rejected other awards," Ed Haw, International Woodworkers of America delegate, told a meeting of Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night.

ALSO COMPULSORY?

He wondered if contractors also would have to face compulsory arbitration.

Contractors this week are waging a settlement proposal by lawyer W. E. Philpott who, among other things, suggested carpenters get a 37½-hour week. Employers have opposed the shorter work week.

Jim Modaffari, business agent for the carpenters' Victoria local, told the meeting that after seven weeks of deadlock morale was still high among the men.

OPTIMISM HIGH

He said he believed a lot of employers would accept the Philpott formula.

Harry Anderson, secretary of the council, urged unionists to stay with the carpenters. The action of fellow-workers could defeat their efforts.

"I know of no case in past history where we (the trade unions) have got such a favorable recommendation," he said, referring to the government-appointed mediator's report.

Sidney Roads
Reclassified

A number of roads within the municipal boundaries of the village of Sidney were reclassified Wednesday at the request of the highways department.

A cabinet order stated that 1.88 miles of the Patricia Bay Highway, 1.04 miles of Lochside Drive and Fifth Street, and .33 mile of Beacon Avenue are now classified as arterial highways.

Another cabinet order designated a total of 1.78 miles of Fifth Street, Malvern Avenue and Resthaven Drive as secondary highways.

America local, and chairman of the council's unemployment committee.

Mr. Haw said heavy purchases by eastern seaboard buyers started six months before IWA-industry negotiations, and the result was an accumulation of a backlog of stock.

"This had the effect of depressing the industry," he added.

In addition to storm clouds in the lumber business, shipyards were said short of orders and "the whole picture is not one of a pleasant nature," said Mr. Haw.

A motion which suggested that delegates and affiliates of Victoria Labor Council have the right to support political parties of their choice was ruled out of order.

President Robert Barrie said he couldn't accept the motion because Frank Preston, a defeated Liberal candidate in the Sept. 12 provincial election, because it was specific Canadian Labor Congress policy that the NDP be given support.

Mr. Preston said there were "attacks" on him at a previous council meeting because of his political interests.

"I would like to see this group say that it's a privilege of any individual to support the party of his choice," he added.

Mr. Barrie said if there was any criticism of him at the earlier meeting it was from individual delegates, and it was not incorporated as a Labor Council policy.

Legislature Prepares
For Special Session

William Murray, Speaker of the 27th Legislative Assembly, spent a few days in Victoria this week getting prepared for a special mid-December session.

Mr. Murray, of Prince Rupert, was here last weekend in connection with the visit of 180 delegates who will be attending the Commonwealth Parliamentary Conference in Ottawa later this month.

PRELIMINARY PLANS

He stayed on to make plans for the first session of the 28th Legislative Assembly, in case it has to be opened in December, to ratify a new federal-provincial tax sharing agreement.

START UNSURE

He said Wednesday it would not be known until October whether a brief session would have to be held in December but that he had to be prepared "on the off-chance there may be one."

The task this year included the additional problems of finding office space for four women MLAs who were elected last week, ordering three new chairs and three new desks for the House, which will now have 55 members instead of 52, and deciding how the space in the legislative chamber will be apportioned to these members.

Inquest Adjourned

A coroner's inquest into the road death of Mrs. Nancie Wicks, 68, heard medical evidence Wednesday and then adjourned.

It is expected the hearing will reopen in the Law Courts Sept. 26 at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Wicks was knocked down as she crossed Blanshard at Flagstaff. She died in hospital Sunday. Police identified Gary Anderson of HMCR Mackenzie as the driver of the car.

Province Will Pay
Old Highway Claim

The provincial government Wednesday decided to pay a Trans-Canada Highway construction claim which has been outstanding for more than six years.

A cabinet order authorized the payment of $37,273.33 to Jamieson Construction Co. Ltd., to help cover unexpected expenses involved in project 885-5, the Vancouver-Fraser Valley section of the Trans-Canada Highway.

Project 885-5 was awarded to Jamieson Construction on May 13, 1960. The contract was subsequently delayed because soil conditions in the area were such that a large amount of fill was required.

The delay was longer than anticipated, and the firm had to pay extra money for standby rentals on equipment committed to the project.

The federal government advised the provincial government on April 25, 1966, that it "is prepared to acknowledge this claim for shareability under the Trans-Canada Highway Agreement."

Provincialism Choking
Education in Canada

By DENNIS BELL

VANCOUVER (CP)—The president of the Canadian Education Association said Wednesday narrow provincialism in education policies and programs must be smashed if Canada is to become a great nation.

Dr. H. T. Coutts of Edmonton, dean of the University of Alberta's education faculty, told the opening sessions of the CEA's 43rd annual convention. "One of the great strengths in educational developments in Canada... has been the freedom of different provinces and of individual school systems to innovate and experiment."

NEW WAYS NEEDED

"Without losing this strength, we must find new ways of making optimum provisions for post-secondary education."

"Unless we break down much of our narrow provincialism, and approach common problems co-operatively, we shall not become the great nation we have the potential to be."

While Dr. Coutts spoke, Canada's 10 provincial education ministers discussed the same problems in closed sessions.

DISCUSS PLAN

Under the chairmanship of B.C. Education Minister Leslie Peterson the ministers discussed formation of a national education office.

The ministers reached agreement in principle. Dr. Coutts said rapid technological changes and automation have brought the various provincial administrations to a point where they must realize their concepts of a federal approach to education—under the British North America Act a provincial domain.

"I have felt growing concern, disquiet and frustration as I have read and heard reports by the mass media of the 'if' and 'maybe' plans of the ministers of education to set up an inter-provincial office of education."

He said a national education office would greatly enhance development of post-high school facilities in rural areas as well as leading to standard university and technical school entrance requirements and courses.

Dr. Harold S. Wyndham, director-general of education in New South Wales, Australia, told the 800 delegates that education of 700,000 illiterate people throughout the world is the biggest challenge facing education in the next 10 years.

Plans Go Ahead
On New College

The University of Victoria plans to call tenders this fall for a student housing project that will double present accommodation and create the campus' first college.

Two residences for men are planned adjacent to Emily Carr and Margaret Newton halls for women on the east side of the campus, said a university spokesman.

A central "service area" with dining hall, coffee shop, offices for resident faculty and meeting rooms will also be built.

PREPARE PLANS

The architectural firm of Sidall and Dennis is already preparing plans, said the spokesman.

He added that another building project that will create a second residential college is planned for next spring.

The lawyer demanded that all evidence on the shooting—some of which had been placed in the national archives in Washington—be classified material not to be opened for the next 70 years—should be made available and a new inquiry opened.

"There are suggestions that the inquiry should be made by an outside agency—such as Scotland Yard," Lane said. "That is worth considering."

Money Beat Him

Former Social Credit party whip, Bert Price, said Wednesday the NDP poured a tremendous amount of money and union manpower into the campaign which brought about his defeat last week in Vancouver Burrard riding.

Mr. Price was one of the original Social Credit members first elected in 1952. The 14-year veteran and his running mate, Ald. Tom Alsbury, were beaten in the dual seat riding by NDP candidates Tom Berger and Dr. Ray Parkinson.

He said that while he and Mr. Alsbury spent $3,748 on their campaign, it was "obvious" the NDP had "poured in" a lot more money on its campaign.

"And the NDP had 120 (persons) a night going from door to door—from the unions. They were volunteers all right, but they were on union pay," he said.

Earlier, Social Credit League president George Driedger of Vancouver estimated $50,000 was spent on the NDP campaign in Vancouver Burrard riding.

B.C. Would Get Most Japanese

Most of the Japanese who will enter Canada under the new immigration policy announced Tuesday by Immigration Minister Jean Marchand will stay in B.C., predicts Trade and Commerce Minister Ralph Loffmark.

Mr. Marchand said he would soon recommend to Parliament the abolition of any form of religious or racial discrimination in Canada's immigration policy.

He said Canada had issued 400 visas to Japanese this year and that eventually migration from Japan to Canada would rise to several thousand annually. There are now about 30,000 Japanese living in this country.

Mr. Loffmark told The Colonist from Vancouver: "I would forecast that one of the first effects of this immigration policy will be to step up the interest of Japanese going into joint ventures in British Columbia."

Joint Canadian-Japanese developments here "have worked out very well in the past" and there is no reason why further joint ventures should not be encouraged, he said.

HOLDS RESERVATIONS

But the trade and commerce minister held reservations about the idea of making it easier for more immigration from such places as the Philippines, Hong Kong and Southeast Asia.

The economic ties between B.C. and these areas are "quite different than they are with Japan," Mr. Loffmark said.

"They are not as easy to assimilate, for the reason that very often they don't have the same skills, the same background or the same social experiences."

'VERY CLOSE'

"The social experiences of the Japanese are very close to ours. They in fact are parallel — I would say the social differences are minimal," he said.

British Columbia would get most of the new Japanese immigrants because "it's the first stopping-off place, and it's also a community in which the Japanese are very familiar," he added.

Navy Missiles

Sparrows to Guard Canada's Air Space

HALIFAX (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer announced Wednesday that approval has been given by the government for the development and purchase of an all-weather, close range, surface-to-air missile system for the Canadian Navy.

Chinese Subs Sighted Near India

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Unidentified submarines, believed to be Chinese, have recently been sighted in the Bay of Bengal near India's Andaman Islands, a defence ministry spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the submarines were heading north, possibly for East Pakistan.

He said they carried no identification marks and since other countries with submarines would have informed India of their movements in this area, it was inferred that they were Chinese.

He told a news conference that the system—called the Canadian Sea Sparrow—will be fitted in four new helicopter destroyers and two new operations support ships to provide an effective defence against air attack.

Total cost for design, prototype construction, system production and initial system procurement would be $25,000,000, which had been provided for in the integrated defence program.

CONVENTIONAL WARHEAD

The minister said the system will use the Sparrow III missile employed by the United States Navy, equipped with a fire control system designed in The Netherlands and a launcher developed in Canada.

The missile does not carry a nuclear warhead, Mr. Hellyer added.

The first of four new helicopter destroyers is scheduled for delivery late in 1970 and the program would be completed by 1972. Two operational support ships are scheduled to be completed by late 1969.

Reactions Favorable

OTTAWA (CP) — Hundreds of highly-trained and professional Japanese workers would respond to good job offers from Canadian employers, says the Canada-Japan Trade Council in its current newsletter.

Mounties Well Down On Attendance List

SEATTLE (CP)—A total of 1,747,576 paying customers watched Pacific Coast League baseball action this year, league president Dewey Arriano said Wednesday.

He said the figure was 250,000 below his prediction for the season but 23,767 more than last year.

Hawaiian Islanders led the 13-team league, playing to 191,987. Vancouver Mounties was eighth with 121,483 attending home games.

Majors Must Wait

Seattle Blows Dome Bid

SEATTLE (AP)—Seattle's plans for an all-weather stadium to attract big league sports were washed out Tuesday by failure of a $38,000,000 bond issue.

"The party's over," said Joseph Gandy, chairman of a citizens committee that had campaigned for the stadium for months. "We blew it. That's what I'll have to tell the officials of the National Football League."

VOTE CLOSE
A majority favored the bond measure but it got only about 52 per cent when it needed 60 — a state constitutional requirement on bond issues. The vote was 112,972 yes, 106,023 no, in 2,030 of King County's 2,069 precincts.

"We've been running scared from the start," Gandy said. "Just getting a majority vote on a money measure is difficult. Getting 60 per cent is a hideous thing."

Double Victory

Colwood defeated Oak Bay recently to win two trophies in women's golf action. Colwood took the Sayward Cup in the A section and the Paterson Cup in the B.

GRACE TOPS POLLS
Dr. W. G. Grace, the great early cricketer, made more than 50,000 runs and took more than 3,000 wickets in his career.

The presence of a $43,000,000 school bond issue on the Seattle ballot made it tougher for the stadium supporters. The school measure passed.

The stadium issue could be brought up again in November, but Gandy said he thought that would be unwise.

By then, he said, the National Football League will have awarded its 18th franchise — the one Seattle hoped to get by having firm plans for an all-weather stadium on the lines of Houston's Astrodome. The city also hoped for a major league baseball franchise.

This was the second time the voters had turned down a stadium measure. In 1960 they defeated a $15,000,000 proposal. The University of Washington stadium, seating 55,000, is Seattle's only plant of sufficient size to accommodate major league sports. The university regents have opposed the use of the stadium by professionals on a permanent basis.

In Esquimalt League

One Forces Team

Army and Navy hockey teams will combine talents to compete in the Esquimalt Hockey League this winter.

It was announced earlier Army would not enter a team due to lack of bodies. The decision to merge into a Canadian forces team was disclosed Wednesday.

University of Victoria Vikings and league champion Pontiacs, now Tudor Monarchs, will be back again.

Monarchs will meet a league all-star team Oct. 7 at the Esquimalt Sports Centre and regular play will start Oct. 14.

Hunt, Heggie Collide In Uplands Title Run

Bob Hunt, his eyes on the Uplands Golf Club championship, faces former club champion Claude Heggie in a quarter-final Sunday.

Hunt entered the quarters by defeating medalist Don Hillsborough at the 18th hole in the opening round last week.

Bob Moss, Gordie Pellow, Scott Cameron, Frank Scroggs, Keith Sweetnam and Dave Zabel are still in the running. Sunday's draw:

8:00—G. Briscoe vs. R. Spaven; E. Mayak vs. A. Brown.
8:00—R. Caddell vs. R. Coaker; C. Locantelli vs. F. Hope.
8:30—W. Harris vs. R. Burrell; G. Taylor vs. W. Robertson.
9:30—D. McCaughey vs. I. Anderson; M. Neely vs. M. Ross.
11:30—C. Hayes vs. J. Bransley; B. Meriak vs. R. Boyle.

Two Out For O'Keefes

Victoria O'Keefes will be playing without fullback Don McIntosh and forward Russ Ball when they meet their Pacific Coast Soccer League arch-rivals, Vancouver Columbus, in their second league game at Macdonald Park at 2 p.m., Saturday.

Last Sunday Columbus, the league champions, tied O'Keefes 0-0 in Vancouver, and last year they knocked O'Keefes out in the finals.

SECOND HALF

McIntosh is sitting out the second half of a two-game suspension received at the close of last season's play and Ball twisted his knee playing McIntosh's fullback position.

Ed Carson, a new player from Alberta who took over from Ball, turned in a good performance and will start Saturday. Centre forward Jim Schultz was removed from Sunday's game for fighting and no word has been received on any suspension.

Navy Golf On Today

Twenty members of the Royal Canadian Golf Association start a three-day handicap championship tournament at noon today with a qualifying round.

Match play starts Friday and continues Saturday. Post entries will be accepted. Today's list:

12:00—B. Brooks, J. Poole, F. Dunne, R. Lawley.
12:30—E. Sheplaway, D. Little, W. Walker, D. Cole.
12:30—T. Murray, R. McFarlane, G. Walker, T. Vessey.
12:30—W. Hill, T. Kellington, A. Bennett, F. McRae.
12:30—W. Evans, R. Douglas, J. Bottemier, A. Mitchell.
2:25—L. Kelly, R. Boyden, Wilt.

Katzenbach Moves

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson surprised official Washington Wednesday by appointing attorney general Nicholas Katzenbach to succeed undersecretary of state George W. Ball as the second-ranking official in the state department. It was rare for a cabinet official such as Katzenbach to move into a lower government position, and at lower pay, but the president said he did not consider it a demotion for "one of the most competent and selfless men I know."

For Katzenbach, it meant returning "to my first love."

Siamese Twin Charge

Autopsy Pressure Denied

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Leonard McGee, say they were "pressured" at the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children to allow an autopsy on their daughter Sherri Lee, who died Saturday shortly after being separated by doctors from her Siamese twin sister Crystal Ann.

John T. Law, hospital administrator, denied that the hospital had used pressure and also denied that any hospital staff member other than Dr. James Simpson and Dr. Paul Sawyer, in charge of the neo-natal clinic where the babies were tended before the operation, had even discussed an autopsy with the McGees.

"The last thing we would want to do would be to bring pressure on parents at a time like this," he said in an interview. "The hospital's feeling is that the post-mortem privilege is the right of the parents. There is no resentment among doctors that an autopsy was not permitted."

German Sub Raised

HAMBURG (AP) — Salvage crews raised the sunken West German submarine Hal Wednesday and began to tow it under water to the Helgoland Island naval base. It sank last Wednesday in a violent storm. Only one of the 29 crew members survived. The 150-mile tow to Helgoland was expected to take until Saturday.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT

On a visit to England some years ago, I saw one sight which will always remain in my memory — a acre of Lincolnshire pastureland shaded all over with wild Lent lilies, Nardus pseudo-narcissus. These are tiny things, only six inches tall, and not particularly impressive when compared with our modern daffs, but massed by the thousands in the bright sunlight of spring, they were breathtaking in their loveliness.

Not many of us have the acres or the cash to plant in such a wholesale way, but even a modest garden will have room for a few naturalized bulbs. I should warn all would-be planters, though, that there are certain disadvantages in growing daffs in this way.

For one thing, if the bulbs are to continue to bloom and to increase year after year, the foliage must NOT be cut down until it turns yellow and dies down naturally. This means the grass cannot be cut until after the end of June, and the combination of yellow and dying narcissus foliage and foot-high grass isn't a pretty one.

You can't spike the lawn with an aerating fork either, for fear of spearing your precious bulbs. Nor can you maintain an acid soil reaction, for the acid soil that favors the growth of the finer and more desirable lawn grasses isn't the daffodil's cup of tea at all.

On very large lawns, the naturalized daffodil planting could be confined to the odd corner, of course, but by and large, I think it is best to naturalize bulbs only in rough grass in the wild areas or under orchard trees. There are some lucky people who own a piece of open woodland or a thinly-treed grove or copse, and such sites are excellent for bulbs. Rough banks or hollows are good too, but avoid marshy places or close in under large trees, especially evergreens.

It is important, too, to plant only suitable varieties. Once planted, naturalized narcissus must be left pretty well to their own devices; it is wise, therefore, to stick to the tough and hardy sorts that need no pampering. As a general rule, the closer a variety is related to a "wild" narcissus, the better it is able to look after itself. That cheerful old double yellow, Van Sion, for instance, is practically indestructible.

Two good yellows are the old trumpet Emperor and the large-cupped Sir Watkin. The white and yellow bicolor Empress is a good naturalizer, and so is the cream trumpet, W. P. Miller. Good whites are Mme. de Grief, Mitlen and White Nile, while the small-cupped whites Seagull and Albatross and the orange cups Hades, Luchifer and Dansons all stand up well. Some of these are very old varieties and are not too easy to come by nowadays, being superseded in the stores by bigger and more spectacular but not so tough types.

Given a bit of shelter from the worst of the spring gales, I would be prepared to take a chance on such moderns as the yellow Carlton, Magnificence, Ilavick and Gilded Harvest, the white Beechdale and the bicolor Bowen and Spring Glory. My old favorite, King Alfred, is a bit too tall for naturalizing — it blows over too easily in a gale — nor could I recommend any of the large-flowered double kinds like Texas, for they are too heavy in the bloom.

ART BUCHWALD Meets Congressman Howl

Mother-in-Law on Payroll

WASHINGTON—Congressman Adam Clayton Powell has been on the hot seat for so many times recently that one hardly knows where to begin. Among the things his opponents have charged is that he has his wife on his congressional payroll although she lives in Puerto Rico and has never seen any of her pay cheques.

Powell maintains that everyone in Congress has relatives on his payroll and people were just picking on him because he wears a mustache.

It is true that Congressman Howl is not the only one who has a relative on his payroll. The other day I interviewed Congressman Wadley Peyton Howl, one of the most controversial figures in the House.

"Congressman Howl, it is rumored that you have your mother-in-law on your payroll."

"I've never denied it. She is a great asset to me and worth every bit of the $28,000 the government pays her."

"What does she do for you?"

"She answers my mail for one thing."

"But Congressman Howl, your mother-in-law lives in the Aleutian Islands."

"Exactly. We get a lot of mail from Eskimos, and we send it on to her."

"She claims she's never seen a pay cheque from the government."

"Of course not. What would you do with a pay cheque in the Aleutian Islands? I deposit the cheque for her in my account and then when she needs something like whale oil or earmuffs I send it to her."

"Congressman Howl, I hope you don't mind my asking these questions, but it is said that although you are chairman of the joint committee on recreation and school lunch periods you have never attended a meeting."

"This is a new low in political irresponsibility," Howl said. "The only reason I haven't attended any meetings of my committee is that I've been travelling and gathering information for an investigation I plan to hold on school lunch periods."

"Is that why you went to Aspicula last month?"

"Exactly. I heard about a school down there that holds lunch periods at night, and I was very curious about it."

"Your detractors also claim you spent four weeks in Las Vegas and handed in a $15,000 expense account."

"Las Vegas has schools, too."

"What about the trip to the Riviera this summer?"

"I went there to find out if we should introduce water skiing into our poverty program."

"Mr. Howl, although you represent the Fifth District, no one has ever seen you there."

"I used to go home to visit my constituents, but every time I did someone would have me arrested. So I said the hell with it. Let my constituents visit me."

"There is some talk they may try to take your committee away from you."

"Let them try, and they'll hear from every Eskimo in this country."

"Congressman Howl, why are people always picking on you?"

"I'll tell you why, but you won't print it."

"Yes, I will."

"Because I let everyone take advantage of me. It isn't easy to be a nice guy."

SYDNEY HARRIS Advises Employers:

First Things First

Our friends were almost an hour late for dinner, and the husband apologized that a "business emergency" had held them up.

It turned out that one of his most valuable employees had suddenly given notice, and it took a two-hour conference to persuade him to stay, at a considerably higher salary.

"He's worth the extra salary," my friend explained, "and I would have given it to him long ago if I had known how he felt—but my chief assistant never told me."

One of the problems that business has not yet successfully worked out is the proper balance between men and money, between short-term profit and long-term planning. If big government is guilty of wastefulness, big business, at the other extreme, is guilty of false economy.

My friend's firm is divided into three departments. Each department has a head, and each head is responsible for an annual budget. At the end of the fiscal year, a department head feels he has been "successful" if he has kept within his budget and can show a good financial record.

But if this becomes the main object of an executive, he is eventually going to be forced to sacrifice men of long-term value for gains of short-term worth.

Very often, the owner of a company—as in my friend's case—is unaware that his subordinates are presenting a handsome "paper" record at the expense of personnel. In most instances, he is both more generous and more farsighted than his assistants.

The reason is easy to see. They are bucking for promotion, and it has been drilled into them that the firm's annual statement of position takes a No. 1 priority with the directors and the stockholders. This being the case, they feel compelled to throw overboard any cargo whose weight would burden the statement.

My friend was aghast at the thought of losing a valuable employee, yet he is at least partly to blame for the situation, by selecting an assistant who is long on dollar sense and short on human psychology. For the fundamental value of a company is no greater than the morale of the men and women who work for it.

The rise of the union in modern industrial society is as much a psychological as an economic event. The average employee feels an increasing sense of remoteness from the core of his company; and it has only been in the last dozen years that many firms have awakened to the realization of their deficiencies in human relations.

"Loyalty" is an effective slogan only when an employee is convinced that his welfare takes precedence over the narrow ambitions of the chain of command.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Out Costs Trini $20,000

Trini Lopez, the pet of the screaming set, paid $20,000 for his own mercy killing. Early in the year, Trini was signed to play a top role as one of the battle-scarred warriors in his first movie, The Dirty Dozen. He turned down several lucrative singing engagements to journey to England where the film is still in production with Lee Marvin, Robert Ryan, and Jim Brown, among others. As the schedule lengthened, Trini's role diminished until he was hardly in it at all. He demanded his release. There was only one way out. Death. But he had to pay for his demise. This concludes the Curious Case of the Disappearance of Trini Lopez from The Dirty Dozen six weeks before it would have been finished.

Items we don't believe for a second. That Hugh O'Brian learned the Swahili dialect so that he could make himself understood in Nairobi where he is making Cowboy in Africa. Hugh never had trouble making himself understood in any country before, especially when the underdog is female.

Beatle John Lennon, locationing in Germany for How I Won the War, complained to the manager of his hotel that some young guests in the adjoining suite were keeping him awake. It turned out they were playing Beatle records!

Vittorio de Sica caught the Earl of Lucan gambling at the casino in Deauville, and promptly signed him for his new picture, Woman Seven Times, with Shirley MacLaine and Vittorio Gassman. The handsome young earl, whose great-grandfather led the Immortal Charge of the Light Brigade in the Crimean War, is looking forward to his new job which includes a fight with Gassman while a nude Shirley is practicing yoga at their feet. The picture is being filmed in Paris. Naturally.

A reader asks after Jack Hawkins, who is learning to speak again after an operation for cancer. Jack hopes to work again in films but not this year.

Bobby Morse has a TV series in preparation at the Mirisch Company based on The Apartment, which starred Jack Lemmon and Shirley MacLaine. But first Morse must redo his wild mixed-up epic with Rosalind Russell, Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Etc., which they made last year in Jamaica and which Seven Arts boss Ray Stark was too smart to release in its present form. Bobby loves Hollywood, has moved here bag and baggage, bought a house, and hopes you will now mistake him for a westerner.

If you want to know what Bing Crosby has been doing, he's been making faces at Egmont, Cumberland where grimaces from all parts of England are competing for the title of champion in what has to be the funniest contest of all. . . . Anna Magnani, in Moscow with an Italian stage company, stated that she has more or less retired from filmmaking because the only offers she receives are for crime and over-sexy movies. Are there any others?

Elizabeth Taylor is still trying to do something about her recent taped autobiography which quotes her remarks about the late Mike Todd. She says they were off the record, and she is upset when the book is mentioned. It didn't do as well as they had hoped. A book has to be more than a string of recollections and anecdotes.

Four Courses Open to Victoria

Is a Tourist Czar the Answer?

By A. H. MURPHY

If Victoria is going honky-tonk, let it have topless go-go dancers among the totems in Thunderbird Park and a glee show in Bessie Square, A. G. Coning, former chairman of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce spring flower festival committee, suggested Wednesday.

But even such an attempt would seem pathetic in the eyes of Americans who are artists at the game, Mr. Coning fears.

In a statement which will be the subject of intensive study and discussion at the executive level of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, he recommended the appointment of a strong governing committee completely detached from the profit motive in the tourist industry.

Such a committee would be the only recipient of civil grants promoting the industry, and would have a strong city representative as part of its membership.

It would aim to preserve the best of what Victoria has and plan for the future. It would enforce the canons of good taste and give some overall control to what now was a mixed-up, chaotic situation.

And, said the Coning statement: "Why not a tourist commissioner?"

This is the year of decision, the brief continues. It is too late to do anything about 1966, and it may be too late to do more than talk about 1967, but the city should be in the active planning stage for 1968.

"There are four courses open to us," the statement said.

- Concentrate on "Ye Olde."
- Become honky-tonk.
- Remain a point of entry or departure for Vancouver Island and B.C. in general.
- Create a new tourist image retaining the best and ruthlessly banishing the cheap and tawdry.

"We are no longer 'Ye Olde'."

Mr. Coning said. "We are unable to provide authenticity of background to do this properly. Old ladies in mop caps drinking tea from Chelsea cups on the Empress lawn are not authentic, nor are Beefeaters bewildered among the California licence plates."

The honky-tonk atmosphere was out, Mr. Coning thought. Victoria could never do it properly and besides, nobody was going to drive here from San Francisco to see in Victoria what they regard as their native California fauna.

Victoria is already half-way gone in establishing itself as a point of entry and departure. It throws all its propaganda at visitors when they disembark. The question was, did that often them up to enjoy the delights of the city, or drive them up-Island to the "aesthetic joys of castles built of beer bottles."

"If we are going to embark and disembark, let us do it properly," the statement suggested. One way would be for the provincial government to supplement the Black Ball Ferry Service, which was quite inadequate at tourist peak.

"If we are going to create a new tourist image, it must be done now. Tomorrow will be too late as the discordant, the jangling and the tawdry is moving in — and not slowly. Furthermore, the idea also still enjoys a measure of support from those who commend our natural beauty while they drool for a fast buck," the statement said.

Rockland 'No' May Trade Elderly for Addicts

Haigh

Rockland Avenue residents who rejected the idea of a guest home for elderly people in the neighborhood discovered Wednesday night that the big house had been bought by Harry Haigh for use as a drug addict treatment centre.

Mr. Haigh, a scrap dealer who gave up another house on Rockland some time ago amid charges that he ran it as a junkyard, announced the move on an open-line radio program. He said he would rent 1715

Rockland to Vern Minow of Vancouver to open a Halfway House in Victoria. Mr. Minow is a former drug addict who has operated the controversial Halfway House in Vancouver for more than a year, to provide treatment for addicts.

FIRST PETITION

The purchase was confirmed Wednesday night by Sonja Rosenberg who, with her husband Henrik, operates Begbie Rest Home at 1203 Belmont.

The Rosenbergs bought the house on Rockland in February of this year to run "as a guest home for middle-aged and elderly people," Mrs. Rosenberg said.

They had first petitioned 20 of the nearest neighbors and obtained 13 signatures in favor of the home, she said.

A counter-petition was then circulated. Mrs. Rosenberg said, and some of the signers of the original petition removed their signatures of approval.

F. A. Davidson, welfare administrator for Victoria, confirmed that the Rosenbergs had not been able to get approval for their venture.

"The Rockland area is an ideal setting for elderly people," he said. "It is quiet and restful."

GOOD OPERATION

"As for the Rosenbergs," he said, "we will support their efforts to establish a home because we know their type of operation. It is very good. But the people in the Rockland area concerned feel the area should keep its character as an exclusive residential area."

Rev. H. T. Allen of James Bay United Church said the Rosenbergs had brought the situation to his attention when they were unable to get permission to run a guest home.

"It seemed to me like something that should be welcomed and encouraged in the community," he said. "I've seen the Begbie Rest Home, and it's spotless. These people are doing a humanitarian job. It seems strange that they should be blocked."

CONDITIONAL

Mrs. Rosenberg said the sale of the property was conditional on the Rosenbergs not getting permission to open up a guest home.

"If we don't have permission by Friday," she said, "the deal goes through and the house belongs to Harry Haigh."

Mr. Haigh Wednesday night confirmed that he had offered the eight-bedroom house to Mr. Minow. He said the $30,000 house would be "a great place" for either a rest home or a halfway house.

GOVERNMENT MAN

"I can't see how Waldo Skilling can be against the idea, because he is a government man and the government supports the Halfway House in Vancouver," Mr. Haigh said.

Mr. Skilling lives next door at 1721 Rockland.

Mr. Davidson said that Mr. Haigh's statement about the use of the house was "premature." "This would also have to be approved," he said.

TRICKY TECHNIQUE

Halfway House in Vancouver, which Mr. Minnow has been operating for more than a year, was without financial support for nine months. The provincial government is reported to have granted the operation $1,500 for a month and to have continued the payment.

In treating drug addicts, withdrawal drugs are said to be used, a method which many experts say is a debatable and tricky technique.

A long-time defender of the area's character, Russell Ker, president of Ker & Stephenson real estate, lives at 1626 Rockland. He was in the Cariboo and could not be reached Wednesday for comment.

Mrs. Waldo Skilling said she knew nothing about any petition or any signatures against establishment of the guest home.

Warm Spell To Stay For Awhile

Greater Victorians may luxuriate for two days more in the magic of delayed summer weather. The official high temperature Wednesday was 74, which means that many parts of Victoria were warmed to the low 80s. The weather office reports the sunny, warm days are due to last at least until Friday. Today's forecast high is 74.

U.S. Idle on Race Problem

'Solution May Lie In Canada'

By BILL STAVDAL

The United States hasn't yet taken serious steps to solve its racial problem, civil rights fighter James Meredith declared in Victoria Wednesday.

"This is a serious business, but the U.S. hasn't taken it seriously," said the man who in 1962 became the first Negro to enrol at the University of Mississippi, and who survived a shotgun ambush last summer.

He addressed an overflow crowd of more than 1,500 in the University of Victoria gymnasium, nine-tenths of them teen-agers and university students. About 400 were turned away.

ULTIMATE ANSWER

Responses to Negro unrest in the U.S. have been "to ameliorate the situation and quiet the disturbance," said Mr. Meredith.

"We have not made an effort to understand the situation and seek a permanent solution."

At one point in his hour-long address Mr. Meredith said:

"The ultimate answer to the racial question rests with the whites."

BACKGROUND

Background to the problem, he said, is that "Western civilization is built on a premise of white superiority."

"Will we continue with the premise of white superiority, or will we move toward our ideals of equality and equal justice?"

Mr. Meredith said he believes 90 per cent of whites in

Crowd of 1,500 jams university gymnasium to hear Meredith

—William John

Mississippi want the old system changed, but are powerless because the system is "self-perpetuating."

He said he is determined to improve the lot of Negroes.

"I want to be a part of society. Either society will destroy me or I will destroy society," he said.

He told a sympathetic audience several times that the blame for the racial situation rests with the white man.

He went unchallenged when he stated:

"No Negro is capable of violence. Only whites are capable of violence. Only whites have the facilities for violence."

During a question period he said that brick-throwing and setting fires are not violence.

"SOMETHING ELSE"

"That's vandalism and arson," he said. "Violence is something else."

During his evening address he suggested that a Canadian might someday make a study of America's racial problem that would be acceptable to both sides.

"It could be that Canada will lay the groundwork for the solution to the racial problem in the U.S.," he said.

HOOTS OF DERISION

An elderly listener rose and suggested a solution to the racial problem in the U.S.: Ship all the Negroes to Africa.

After hoots of derision died down, Mr. Meredith replied:

"Even if this were the answer to the Negroes' problem, it would not be the answer for Western civilization."

SHAPED EVENTS

Mr. Meredith, now a law student at Columbia University, was brought to Victoria by the student Political Science Forum and introduced by university president Malcolm Taylor.

Dr. Taylor said Mr. Meredith's will, tenacity and courage have already helped to shape the events of our time.

Bullet Cuts Artery

Shot in Shoulder, Young Hunter Dies in Minutes

A young hunter died near Kangaroo Road early Wednesday morning, minutes after being hit in the shoulder by a .303 rifle bullet.

Lawrence Daniel Watts, 17, of 266 Atkins Avenue, a member of a family of gun enthusiasts, died after the bullet from a friend's gun severed an artery in his shoulder.

Colwood RCMP were still investigating details of the tragedy, but it appeared Daniel Watts had been trying to flush a deer out of thick brush to enable his hunting partners, Jim Henderson, 17, of Lippincott Road, and Wayne John Wellman, 19, of 1115 Donna, to get a shot.

When no deer showed, Mr. Watts started back to where the two partners were. As he came in sight, Jim Henderson lowered his gun and it went off. The shot felled Watts. Police estimated he died in between three and four minutes. It was 7:15 a.m.

Mr. Wellman immediately raced for help, running a half-mile through the thick brush to Kangaroo Road, where he rushed to the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Henderson.

"He told me his buddy had

been badly shot and was bleeding terribly. He said to get an ambulance," Mrs. Henderson said.

She phoned the RCMP, then grabbed some towels, hoping to staunch the flow of blood.

Mrs. Anderson is a part-time practical nurse.

They rushed back through the thick brush to the scene, but Mrs. Anderson took the boy's pulse, and realized it was too late.

She said both the boys were very helpful and praised Mr. Wellman's efforts in guiding people to the scene.

"He must have been up and down that road at least five times, guiding the police and the ambulance," she said.

She said Wellman arrived at her house at 7:40 a.m.

The boy's father, Lawrence Watts, is known as one of the finest skeet shooters in the city and his mother is an award-winning skeet shooter. Both are excellent rifle shots.

Daniel Watts was an enthusiastic outdoorsman and fisherman.

A post mortem is to be performed today and an inquest will be opened in Sand's Chapel, Colwood, at 10 a.m. Friday.

Mr. Watts is survived by his parents and a sister, Mrs. Jean Chipper of Victoria.

His paternal grandparents are W. Watts, Happy Valley, and Mrs. M. Camfield, Victoria. His maternal grandmother is Mrs. J. Clevette of Victoria.

French Designers Scoff at Skirts

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — Girl watchers of America, hurry up. Feast on what's exposed by mini skirts — mid-high high and higher — while you can. What goes up must come down. The saying applies to skirts showing the greatest length of leg in many a fashion moon. Instead of waiting for cold weather and blue jeans to predict the fall of the teeny-tiny skirt, Paris designers go out on a limb, saying that the skirt that's hardly there is due for a demise.

None other than French designer Coco Chanel, a grand dame of fashion, lends the parade of designers' post-pooling the mini skirt.

Mary Quant, London god-mother of the mini skirt and mod tops, comes out bruised in an assault on the leggy fashion — as per a report in the current McCall's magazine.

With an eye on the calendar, perhaps, the masters of French fashion weighed the mini skirt, found it wearing, accented at the skirt look, and said it won't last.

Chanel and other designers called the skirts "exaggerated," "hysterical," "hysterical."

For a time there was a chance the skirt was making such an impact that it would make London the new fashion centre.

"It seems the new centre is the skirt," Chanel told McCall's. "Fast are too ugly. Knees are an articulation that is not particularly attractive. That leaves the skirt, no?"

Andre Courtes, who showed short skirts with white boots, asked credit for the move toward hiked hemlines. But he disowns what Quant has done to it.

"If I tell you whisky is good," native of England, "I cannot help but feel the youth of England has become hysterical."

"I did something, but it must not fall into exaggeration. London fashions? I have not seen much from there that has taught me anything. What I have seen looks like people amusing themselves, but it is not fashion."

Other Paris designers who piped up about the mini skirt included:

—Yves St. Laurent, saying "English mode exists and is amusing, but it is gaudy."

—Antonio Chanova Del Castillo, saying "youth is important. But young is not childish, which is the mini skirt. It's for showing. It's revealing. Knees are almost never pretty."

—Gerard Pipart, saying "I give the mini skirt two months. It is very sympathetic, but here in France there was no need for that revolt, that violent rupture between the generations."

—Edward Molyneux, a native of England, "I cannot help but feel the youth of England has become hysterical."

Miss Quant accepted the criticism like a lady, refusing to return the fire. She said Chanel "gave women that sleek, catlike look."

The trouble, she thinks, is that the French girls and the English girls are different.

"The French girl wants to grow up to be her mother, so she can get married and finally be free," she said. "For her marriage is emancipation. It's the English girl who is emancipated."

"I don't like little old ladies, whether they are 20, 30 or 90. French girls are often little old ladies."

No one's heard from President Charles de Gaulle. But to a French woman, those are fightin' words.

If De Gaulle gets into the fray, the French are liable to be just as mad at the English as they are at the Americans.

Matte-Sinnott

Honeymoon in South

Adele Margaret Sinnott and Mr. John James Matte exchanged nuptial vows and rings when they were married in St. John's Anglican Church recently.

Rev. A. G. Baker officiated at the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Sinnott, 335 Paradise Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Matte, 350 Lamson Street.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of white tulle and mohair styled with three-quarter sleeves, and full, flowing train sweeping from the bustle back which was centred with three large roses at the waistline. Her veil was shoulder length and she carried a cascade of red Briar Rose roses and eucalyptus. A strand of cultured pearls was her only jewelry.

Miss Sharon Sinnott was maid of honor for her sister, while Mrs. Evan Chaplin, the groom's sister, and Mrs. Gordon Flack were bridesmaids and Miss Gail McDermid, bridesmaid.

They wore full length empire style gowns of peach blue chiton over tulle with tulle headpieces to match. White chrysanthemums were in their cascade bouquets.

Mr. Gary Reynolds of Nanaimo was best man and showing guests to the pews were Mr. Gordon Flack, Mr. Evan, Chaplin, and Mr. Larry Matte, brother of the groom.

The reception followed in the Ingraham Hotel banquet room where a four-tiered wedding cake made by the bride's mother and led by the groom's mother, centred the table.

Leaving by motor for a two-week honeymoon in San Francisco the new Mrs. Matte were a turquoise double bust suit and black velvet picture hat. Accessories were also in black and her corsage was of pink roses.

Guests from out of town included Mrs. W. S. Wilson with daughters Elizabeth, Susan and Patti from Calgary; Mrs. F. E. Sinnott, Miss Frances Sinnott and Mr. Keith Lang, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Ryall and Mr. Alan Ryall, Nelson; Mr. and Mrs. A. Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. D. Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. K. Ryall, Capt. and Mrs. D. F. Reynolds and Mrs. G. Reynolds, Nanaimo, and Miss Sally Chivers from London, England.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. David W. Brown, with their son Alan, have left Victoria for Holland, to take up residence in The Hague. David Brown was with the Department of Defence and is now going to work with NATO. He was a student at Glen Lyon School, Victoria High School, and Victoria College. He graduated from the University of British Columbia with an honors degree in engineering (electronics), and later took his master's degree at Imperial College, London. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brown of Locarno Lane, and his wife, Catriona, is daughter of Mrs. Lloyd Brereton, 1337 Fairfield Road.

Seabrook-Hicks

Couple to Live At Cold Lake

A lovely wedding was solemnized recently when Miss Maureen Hicks, became the bride of L. A. C. Reuben James Seabrook, RCAF. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Jennie Hicks, 1064 Willow Street, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. K. F. Seabrook of North Battleford, Sask.

Yellow, white and gold chrysanthemums decorated the Church of St. Andrew, Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, for the double-ring ceremony, performed by Rev. A. G. Faraday. The fair haired bride entered the church on the arm of her uncle, Mr. J. H. Hodgson. Her floor-length gown of "nite-lite-taffeta" was styled on Empire lines and trimmed in delicate appliques of lace and sequins, with a full train sweeping from the shoulders, trimmed in the same lace and sequins. Her veil of silk illusion net misted from a cluster of satin organza roses. A single strand of pearls, gift of the groom, was her only jewelry, and she carried a white bible centered by three orchids with cascading Stephanotis and satin streamers.

The bride's senior attendants were a symphony in gold and tangerine floor-length floral chiffon. Accentuating their Empire gowns were matching head-pieces on tone with attached veils, complemented by bouquets of bronze and gold chrysanthemums. Mrs. H. McLaughlin was matron of honor and bridesmaids were the Misses Doreen Poole and Diana Lowe.

The petite flower girl, Linda Carruthers, a relative of the groom, was a pretty picture in her floor-length taffeta dress, carrying a basket of gold and bronze chrysanthemums. Best man for the groom was Mr. Colin MacLean, and ushering guests to the pews, decorated with nosegays of gold chrysanthemums, were Mr. Harry B. McLaughlin and Mr. William Archer.

The yellow and gold theme was continued in the decorations at Holyrood House where the reception was held. A three-tiered wedding cake centred the bride's table, flanked by silver vases of yellow roses. Mr. E. T. Staley proposed the toast to the bride. The new Mrs. Seabrook donned an Italian-knit suit of deep jade, complemented by an orchid corsage and black accessories for the honeymoon trip.

The couple will reside at the RCAF Base, Cold Lake, Alta. Out of town guests were Mrs. K. F. Seabrook, and Misses Sharon and Wilma Seabrook, North Battleford, Sask.; Miss Dawn Seabrook (groom's cousin), Saskatoon, Sask.; Mrs. Margaret Skov, Barrhead, Alta.; Mr. and Mrs. E. McLean (cousins of the bride), and Karen McLean, Winfield, B.C.; Mrs. F. Thompson, Penticton, B.C.

Bride-Elect Honored At Party

Mrs. Walter Cull, 5305 Parker Avenue, and her daughter, Mrs. Norman J. Andersen, Denroche, B.C., entertained at a musical luncheon for bride-elect Miss Marilyn Stanby whose marriage takes place on Sept. 24.

Carnation corsages were presented to the guest of honor and her mother, Mrs. J. M. Stanby. Guests were Mrs. H. Andrew, Mrs. D. Critchley, Mrs. F. Dyer, Mrs. P. Espley, Mrs. C. Foster, Mrs. P. Gamble, Mrs. D. Gregg, Mrs. E. Henslow, Mrs. W. Mackie, Mrs. J. Nicol, Mrs. W. Pass, Mrs. H. Porter, Mrs. R. Tyre, Mrs. N. Westwood, Mrs. P. Woolley, and the Misses Linda Gregg, N. Jenner, Del Leash, Pam McMillan and K. Riley.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew H. Westwick, 2843 Gosworth Road, announce the forthcoming marriage of their only daughter, Lynn Carole, to Mr. Allan Daniel Sherman, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. Sherman, McCreary, Man. The wedding will take place at 6:30 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 8, in St. John's Anglican Church with Canon Grahame B. Baker officiating. (Gibson's Studio)

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: A few nights ago we were sitting around with a group of extremely intelligent people and someone quoted you. As a rebuttal (and I'm sure in jest) one of chaps said, "They ought to get her for practicing without a license."

I am not trying to be impertinent, but would you please explain how and why you can give advice on legal, medical and emotional problems? Is it sufficient to quote from the authorities?

Let me repeat, I do not mean to be arbitrary. I am merely inquisitive — NOSEY PARKER.

P.S. It was significant to me,

St. Peter's Fun Fair

St. Peter's Anglican Church on St. Peter's Road, at 3935 Quadra Street, will hold its annual Fun Fair on Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Mrs. E. W. S. Gilbert, wife of the rector will officially open the event.

There will be fun for young and old. Afternoon tea will be served and there will be stalls selling home cooking, sewing, flowers, plants, vegetables, books, records and pictures.

There will be games of skill for all ages and a beautiful doll may be won by the person who correctly guesses her name.

A special display of precious and unusual articles including historical items loaned by the parishioners will be featured. Also featured will be a "silent auction."

Coffee Fete For SPCA

Women's Auxiliary to the B.C. Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Victoria Branch, will hold its annual coffee party from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., Sept. 23, in the Douglas Room at the Bay.

Special attractions will include a home cooking table and gift stall.

AMY

By Jack Tippit

"And now, for my final number... Amy's famous one-and-a-half somersault belly whopper!"

I've never seen Walter without a T-shirt although we have been married two years. He even swims in his T-shirt. Walter is a healthy, normal man in every respect except this one.

He prefers a patch black room for romance but then I don't think there's anything unusual about that and I would never try to change it. But please tell me what you think about a husband who will not take off his T-shirt in front of his wife. — B. WILDERED

Dear B.: Walter's fix is probably linked with his early childhood and it may be that even he doesn't know why or when it started.

There are worse things than a man whose hang-up is wearing a T-shirt at all times. For example: The man who drives to and from the beach wearing only swimming trunks.

Claims
Worth
Billions

WALDEN, Colo. (UPI) — A Walden life insurance salesman said Wednesday a long-time state mining man had staked claims on 324 square miles of rugged, semi-desert Colorado land that could be worth up to $46,000,000 per square mile in platinum deposits.

Delbert Roy Leatherman, a spokesman for a 12-man group formed by Herbert Tonn of Idaho Springs, said the find was probably the largest ever discovered in the United States.

36 TOWNSHIPS

Denver attorney Marshall Quait, also a member of Tonn & Associates, said Tonn had found the gigantic platinum field, located in the northwestern corner of Colorado, about six years ago.

He staked claims on 36 townships Monday in Moffat County. The land, Leatherman said, is "against the Wyoming border and not too far from Utah—up above the Dinosaur National Monument. It's so rugged that wild horses still run out there."

'HANDSHAKES, COFFEE'
Quait said Tonn discovered the platinum deposits when "he was hunting coyotes, and noticed that the ground looked like something familiar."

Leatherman said Tonn formed the 12-man group "over handshakes and cups of coffee, no banks or lawyers."

He said, "We've run in excess of 600 tests on samples of the land. All of the tests were made by very qualified persons, including those at the Illinois Institute of Technology, and laboratories in Denver and Salt Lake City."

PRICE UP

He said the price of platinum recently went up from $100 to $168 per ounce, after the Russians withdrew their supply from the world market. He said at that rate, "being very conservative, the tests have shown we can hope for at least $40 per ton of ore. At $50 per ton, that would amount to in excess of $46,000,000 per square mile," he said, "but we are trying not to think that far ahead."

Plot Thickened for Cast

Not much of a story, but that's a great cast, university freshmen Doug Kemp and Barbara Smith decide. Epilogue was written in Royal Jubilee Hospital emergency ward Tuesday night, as orderly Jim Amos snipped pair apart. Cast was applied to their clasped hands as part of Frosh Week celebration.—(Robin Clarke)

Campbell Pushing Again
For Tenant Ballot Right

PENTICTON (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell presented a list of "principles" to the Union of B.C. Municipalities Wednesday that it adopted would involve sweeping changes in the Municipal Act.

The most significant principle would enable renters as well as land owners to run for municipal office and to participate fully in municipal affairs. Under present legislation only property owners are permitted to vote on money bylaws and to run for office.

SIMILAR LIST

Mr. Campbell presented a similar list to the UBCM convention in Victoria last year. The 1,100 delegates, members of municipal governments throughout the province, immediately began a general discussion on each of Mr. Campbell's ideas.

Discussion was to continue today.

APPROVE IT

Earlier in the day, the first of the three-day convention, delegates dealt with more than 20 motions and came up with approval of 11, mostly concerning municipal finances.

A spirited debate followed Squamish's request that the union seek provincial legislation changes to permit municipalities to tax Pacific Great Eastern Railway Co., lands "not directly related to the operation of the railway or other transportation services."

Such a tax was impossible, the resolution said, the provincially-owned corporation should pay affected municipalities "grants equal to and in lieu of such municipal taxes."

Ald. Ernie Broome of Vancouver said he supported such a resolution, but "I wonder why it refers only to the PGE?"

ONLY ONE?
Councillor N. R. Barr of Squamish said the PGE is the only crown-owned corporation which does not pay taxes or give compensatory grants.

Reeve M. M. Fraser of North Vancouver District and first vice-president of the UBCM, termed the resolution "the thin edge of the wedge." The motion was carried by a substantial majority.

CONTROL INDIANS

A Port Alberni resolution asking the provincial government to obtain control of B.C. Indian Affairs was reserved for the incoming executive.

The motion suggested provincial control of education, welfare, health, employment and training to "thereby speed abandonment of the reserve system and hasten integration of B.C. Indians into the white man's way of life, for mutual benefits."

It was referred after Mayor Peter Wing of Kamloops suggested the implications should be studied further and that at least it should make provision for consultation with the Indians themselves—"This is a matter which concerns them vitally."

Christmas Shopping

Late Hours
Set Early

Stores will be open until 9:30 p.m. on all business days except Saturdays from Dec. 8 to Dec. 23, the retail merchants' group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce announced Wednesday.

Lloyd Davies, group chairman, said the schedule came in the form of a recommendation to merchants but that the bigger stores, including the three big department stores, would be conforming.

It was a unanimous decision of the retailers not to open in the evening on Saturdays.

In most cases stores will be open at 9 a.m.

Probe Urged
On Insurance

VANCOUVER (CP) — Justin V. Harbord of Victoria, president of the Insurance Agents Association of British Columbia, Wednesday urged that a royal commission study possible compulsory car insurance.

Mr. Harbord, speaking before the royal commission on car insurance, said the association did not feel competent to make specific recommendations on compulsory insurance.

"But we think public demand for it is sufficiently strong that the matter should be considered by this commission," he said.

NOT SATISFIED

Mr. Harbord said in spite of a "reasonable explanation" from those in the car insurance business, "the public is not satisfied with the present system."

He was asked by commission counsel Gordon Rae whether the insurance industry was opposed to the idea of compulsory insurance.

"I am not aware that the industry has opposed it at any time," Mr. Harbord said.

"NOT LOVELY"

He said the industry preferred to show the "disadvantages" of compulsory car insurance.

He objected to "dishonest statements" made about benefits to the public under Saskatchewan's government-operated plan.

Mr. Harbord said the Saskatchewan government had hailed the scheme as the greatest in the world but said present financial difficulties of the program showed that everything was not "lovely in the garden." The hearing is continuing.

'Shocking' Report

New Democratic Party leader Robert Stanbury said Wednesday the royal commission submitted by Victoria insurance expert Justin Harbord is "an obvious admission the insurance companies don't know what they are doing."

Earlier this week, Mr. Harbord told the royal commission investigation into automobile insurance that a young person with a Bessie haircut, seeking insurance for the first time, might find himself placed in an assigned-risk category — while a clean-cut, intelligent-looking youth "does not belong in assigned risk."

BORN WITH THIS

"It is a shocking admission by Mr. Harbord," said the NDP leader. "How can a person help his facial appearance? You're born with this."

Mr. Stanbury said the testimony being given before the royal commission only points up the NDP's claim that government-sponsored automobile insurance is needed in this province.

Abolition of Exams, Awards
Topic for Grit Policy Meet

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The abolition of all examinations and scholarships plus the availability of nursery school education for all children are recommended in a background paper prepared for next month's national Liberal convention.

Written by Timothy Reid, a York University economist, the paper also proposes a royal commission on education to examine the far reaching consequences of technological change on people's living habits.

FOURTEEN BRIEFS

The brief is one of 14 prepared on a wide range of topics to be discussed at the party policy conference. It contends that Canadians must adopt a whole new philosophy of education.

For years, Mr. Reid wrote, Canada's education system has been geared towards producing "economic man" — one who works only to acquire monetary gain and increased productivity.

"We have achieved affluence but only at a cost; by dehumanizing ourselves; by dehumanizing our aspirations and many of our values; by dehumanizing our education and starving ourselves of the attitudes and abilities with which we could make leisure time rich and meaningful," his paper said.

FEW IN CLASSES

"It is symbolic that this year the University of Toronto graduated only five students in classics compared with more than 300 in engineering."

He contended that a large number of Canadians will be unable to use the leisure time which a great technological changes will soon bring them.

"We must educate individuals for self-fulfillment rather than for work... we must educate humanly oriented scientists... we must educate science-oriented humanists," he wrote.

SOCIAL PURPOSE

"We must educate for social purpose... we must educate for leisure," he continued.

Mr. Reid wrote that government must consider education a major tool for eradicating poverty.

"There must be universal accessibility to nursery school education. This is the only way to break the cycle of poverty," he wrote. He added that poor people do not have equal educational opportunities "because almost all slum schools are fourth rate."

POVERTY AGGRAVATED

The lower standards of education available to poor people aggravates the vicious circle of poverty, he wrote.

A great portion of his paper devoted to an assessment of what the educational system in Canada should produce. But he had several other specific examples.

CANADA BEHIND

More than 12 major nations, he wrote, make a greater educational effort than Canada, although this nation has the second or third highest standard of living in the world.

He concluded that Canada must double its education expenditures at all levels and begin a major drive to recruit the best teachers from nursery schools to universities.

He added: "We must institute a guaranteed minimum affluent income for all Canadians over 18. This is necessary to free many men from the slavery of personality meaningless work."

"They could then pursue their education for the sake of developing themselves."

Law and the Driver

Seattle safety committee has proposed a list of traffic regulations with suggestions when needed.

Many motorists are not aware of the status of the B.I. Rules and included are those which refer specifically to professional drivers.

SECTION 188—Coasting, down-grade prohibited

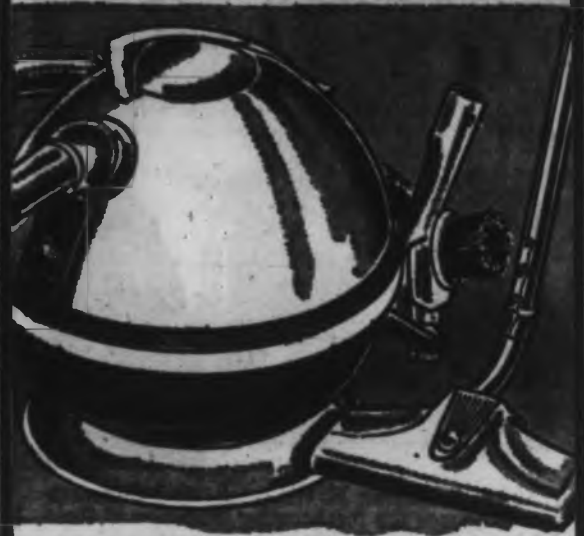

When travelling down-grade a driver shall not coast with the gears of the vehicle in neutral or the clutch disengaged.

Comment

This section is self-explanatory and is a safety measure as a driver has better control over his vehicle braking and steering on down-grade when the clutch is properly disengaged.

Nipping Teacher 'Just Like Daddy'

SEATTLE (AP) — A Seattle kindergarten teacher reports that she decided to refresh her vocal cords with a bit of mouthwash after a lengthy talking session.

The school room had a sink, but she couldn't find a drinking glass. So, thinking she was alone after her class was dismissed, the teacher partook right out of a small bottle she carried in her purse.

"That's just what my daddy does, pretty often," said an interested little girl who wandered back into the room.

"But, dear, this is mouthwash," said the teacher.

"That's just what my daddy says," replied the child.

Reynaud Dies at 87

His 'Disaster' Became Truth

PARIS (AP)—Paul Reynaud, 87, who was premier when German armies crushed France in 1940, died Wednesday in hospital after an operation.

Reynaud's political career spanned almost half a century, but most of the drama was packed into the three Second World War months he served as premier, from March to June, 1940. During that time his previous predictions of disaster came true as French forces disintegrated in the face of the German armored attack.

Reynaud wanted the government to move to North Africa to carry on the fight, but a majority of his ministers opposed the idea. Reynaud resigned and was replaced by Marshal Henri Philippe Pétain.

was named premier to work out an armistice with Germany. A peppy little man who stood five feet two inches, Reynaud was divorced from his first wife in 1948 and married his longtime secretary in 1949 at the age of 71. He was the father of a daughter by his first marriage and two sons and a daughter by his second marriage.

In the days before the war when France was obsessed with a false sense of security from the Maginot Line, Reynaud was pleading to no avail for adoption of the tank-warfare ideas of Col. Charles de Gaulle.

After the war, Reynaud resumed his political life, but his name automatically called up bitter memories.

Bakers Charge:

Island Gas Rates Unfair

A spokesman for Victoria B.C. Hydro's gas rates here are unfair and choke local industry.

John McDonald, president of the Victoria Bakery Products Club, said gas rates for his industry are 2 1/2 times those paid by counterparts in Vancouver.

"The result is that some of the big bakeries simply could not afford to continue their Victoria operations," he said. "They've closed down their local bakeries and send their products here from Vancouver plants."

He used as an illustration the gas bills for his own firm. In one month, it came to $445.18, without the five per cent provincial tax.

For the same volume of natural gas in Vancouver, he would have paid $176.85.

A smaller Victoria bakery had a bill for one month of $153.37. On Vancouver rates, the bill would have been $57.38.

Archivist Opens Season

Four historical lectures will open the Victoria University Extension Association's 43rd season.

Willard Ireland, provincial archivist, will begin the series Sept. 26, the association announced this week.

ALL ON MONDAY

All meetings will be held Mondays at 8:15 p.m. in Room 188 of the Elliott Building on the University of Victoria's new Gordon Head campus.

The program:

Sept. 26, Approaches by Sea and by Land, Willard Ireland, Provincial Archivist.

Oct. 27, The Crown Colony of Vancouver Island, Reginald H. Roy, Associate Professor of History, University of Victoria.

Nov. 7, The Gold Rush and the Crown Colony of British Columbia, Sydney G. Pettit, Head of Department of History, University of Victoria.

Nov. 21, B.C.—A Province of the Dominion, Bruce A. Tobin, Editor, The Victoria Times.

Dec. 5, Music in the Community, Robin Wood, Victoria School of Music.

Jan. 9, (Subject to be announced later) Richard J. H. Holland, Head of Department of Aeronautics and Astronautics, University of Washington.

Jan. 20, Evolution of a Computer-Oriented Society, Peter A. Darling, director of Computer Centre and lectures in Mathematics, University of Victoria.

Feb. 20, Unhatched: The three-headed Challenge, Leonard C. March, Professor of Educational Sociology, University of B.C.

March 6, Genetics and the Future of Man, David Spigel, Associate Professor of Biology, University of B.C.

March 27, The Canadian Student: Social Change and the Environment, Ronald R. Joffe, registrar and Dean of Student Affairs, University of Victoria.

Theft Admitted By Teen Girls

VANCOUVER (CP) — A shoplifting spree by two teenage girls from Salmon Arm was described in magistrate's court.

Joan Timpony, 18, and Diana Eckstadt, 19, both taking business courses here, admitted stealing goods worth a total of $39.59 and were remanded to Sept. 27 for pre-sentence report.

Courtroom Parade

Women Guilty Of Shoplifting

Two women were haled before Magistrate Ostler on charges of theft under $50 after being caught shoplifting.

Marjorie Bell, a housewife, mother of four children under eight, and who had $100 in her purse at the time of the incident, pleaded guilty to stealing $5 worth of meat from a store.

The magistrate told her he was at a loss to know why she had stolen, and said she had brought shame on her husband and family.

"I hope you think it was worth it," he fined her $75.

SOUGHT REFUND

The other woman, Adele Foley, 50, of Island Auto Court, pleaded guilty to stealing clothing worth $22.38.

She later returned to the store and tried to claim a refund for the articles.

"It was embarrassing," said Magistrate Ostler. "You're not getting a refund."

The woman was remanded for sentence.

Found guilty of impaired driving were:

Alexander Sawatzky, $450, and remanded for consideration of licence suspension; Hugh McInnes, remanded for sentence; D. J. Mills, $350, and remanded for consideration of licence suspension; Allen E. Moseley, $300, plus licence suspension for three months.

Sentenced for careless driving were:

William T. Byrne, $40;

Thomas W. Crossland, $35; Dennis L. Diewold, $50; James White, $40.

Douglas L. Tufford was fined $100 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident, and $35 for careless driving.

Clifford G. Hall was fined $150 for dangerous driving, and was prohibited from driving for three months.

Donald G. Christanson and Kelvin Gerald Doyle were each found guilty of being minors in possession of liquor. Each was fined $35, and Christanson was warned he was "lucky" not to have been involved in a charge involving contribution to juvenile delinquency. He was in company with a 14-year-old girl when apprehended.

Jan Tateham drew a two-month term in jail for breach of recognizance. He had failed to notify his probation officer of changes of address and employment, and had failed on several occasions to report to the officer.

Jack Donald Kancor was remanded until Sept. 29 for sentence after he was found guilty of breaking, entering and theft at Aqua Marine Supplies.

Car Price Boosts Draw Fire

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. Wednesday became the second major auto company to hike the prices on its 1967 model cars. The Chrysler prices will jump an average of $92 a car.

The firm, third largest of the "big four" automakers, blamed new safety devices for the increase.

"REGRET"

President Johnson expressed "regret" at the Ford increase because of its possible inflationary consequences. United Auto Workers president Walter Reuther later called the price increase "outrageous" and called for congressional investigation of the Ford prices.

Chrysler released a price schedule showing some models will cost more than $350 more than last year.

Flip Follows Fake Faint

LONDON, Ont. — A judo-trained co-ed pretended to faint when a man grabbed her as she stepped out of her car near her residence.

As the man loosened his grip, she flipped him on his back, bit his thumb, scratched his face and pushed his head into the ground.

Police said Marian Dike, 23, of Kirkland Lake, was dragged about 150 feet by the man but was not hurt. The attacker escaped when the Western University student, five-foot four and 120 pounds, called police.

ANAHEIM, Calif. — James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, Archbishop of Los Angeles, has denounced as "tantamount to murder" a bill endorsed by the State Bar of California convention which would legalize certain therapeutic abortions.

LONDON — Jan Van Der Peet, the South African diplomat who was stabbed in the chest, was reported in satisfactory condition. He was stabbed Sept. 12 in his embassy office. Police have not caught the assailant.

VANCOUVER — Capt. Harry Terry was unanimously re-elected president of the PNE. This is his third time in the office, the last permitted by the PNE constitution.

GENEVA, Switzerland — Soviet cosmonaut Boris Yegorov says Russian space walkers, unlike their American counterparts, will not get tired while in space. The Soviet spacemen, he said, are not bothered by sweating and fatigue as was American astronaut Richard Gordon last week.

WASHINGTON — Autopsy findings attribute the death of James Moyers, an assistant to President Johnson, to an overdose of medically prescribed drugs. Moyers, 39, died at his home in nearby McLean, Va. He was a brother of Bill Moyers, White House press secretary.

LONDON — Richard Haylm, the owner of a security firm specializing in burglar alarms, admitted he got most of his ideas for alarms from James Bond films.

HONG KONG — Chou Tang, the purged director of the Chinese Communist party's propaganda department, has been accused by Radio Peking of committing a "towering crime" while in office, — repressing publication of works by party Chairman Mao Tse-tang.

LANSING, Mich. — A man who masqueraded as a hospital pharmacist for more than a quarter of a century turned himself in to police to face fraud charges. Henry Kanasak, 52, walked into Detroit police headquarters with his lawyer to surrender. The Michigan Pharmacy Board has charged him with working his way up to chief druggist at Detroit's Grace Hospital on the basis of a bogus pharmacist's certificate.

LUSAKA — George Herbert Salton, a Canadian mining expert who was Zambia's director of mineral development, has died at 65.

LONDON — Atlantic shipping has been asked to watch for two Britons who left the U.S. in a 16-foot rowboat and have not been heard of since sighted in mid-ocean 42 days ago. The travelers are journalists David Johnstone, 34, and John Hoare, 29.

CALGARY — Most Rev. Dr. Arthur Michael Ramsey, Archbishop of Canterbury, left by car to visit the Banff, Alta., School of Fine Arts and travel to Golden, B.C., on his month-long Canadian tour.

ELLINGHAM, England — Pack Francis won best in show, 17 first prizes, two seconds and a third at Ellingham's produce show. Totally blind, Francis cultivates his garden by touch.

Five Charged with Burning Drifter

NEW YORK (AP) — Five boys, all under 16 were under arrest Wednesday in connection with the burning of a Bowery drifter.

Leonard Benton, 51, was found lying in a doorway in lower Manhattan Monday, his body severely burned. He told police teen-age boys doused him with kerosene and set him afire.

Three days earlier Frank Cassidy, 67, was turned into a human torch in the same area. Both are in critical condition.

Philippines' Parley Call:

'Let Asians Find Own Solutions'

Guarantee

Offer Made By PGE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Pacific Great Eastern Railway Wednesday made a new contract offer to 400 non-operating employees after receiving 48-hour strike notice.

General manager J. S. Broadbent wired Dave Chapman, spokesman for the Federation of PGE Employees, with the proposal:

"The PGE will pay the settlement finally reached with the national railways and guarantee each regular tradesman a minimum of 50 cents an hour (over two years) and each non-tradesman and apprentice a minimum increase of 40 cents." Chapman was not available for comment Wednesday.

Corrections Boss Says:

Oakalla Situation Nasty, Explosive

VANCOUVER (CP) — Selwyn Rockborough Smith, director of corrections for British Columbia, said Tuesday a "nasty, explosive" situation exists at Oakalla prison farm.

Mr. Smith made the remark during an interview following the recommendation by a coroner's inquest that a full-time psychiatrist be hired to spot inmates with suicidal tendencies. There have been 186 suicide attempts in less than three years at the prison, the inquest was told.

Mr. Smith said Oakalla is out-

He suggested a special Asian political organization be set up within the framework of the UN. (See also Page 3).

Marco's first head of state to appear at the assembly's 1966 session, made a fervent appeal to U Thant to accept a second five-year term as UN secretary-general. He called the office of secretary-general "a unique priesthood of selfless service and sacrifice" and said the UN cannot afford to be without Thant's "wise and dedicated guidance."

BOLD EFFORT
He praised the Soviet Union for its successful mediation of last year's conflict between India and Pakistan and called for a bold Asian effort to emulate this in Viet Nam.

Russia Charges U.S.-China Pact

HONG KONG (AP) — Travelers from China reported Wednesday new clashes between Red Guards and farmers in the Shanghai area, while China hinted there is discord and opposition in its "people's liberation army."

In a related development, Moscow published accusations that China and the United States have entered into a secret deal over Viet Nam. This was a switch. The Chinese have contended there is a U.S.-Soviet deal on Viet Nam.

The new dispute between the Red Guards and farmers were described as "intense and bloody." The visitors said Mme. Mao Tse-tung, first deputy leader of China's cultural revolution, had to go to Shanghai to restrain the guards. She is the wife of the Chinese Communist party chairman.

"I AM CAPITALIST!" Many businessmen were reported to have been seen parading in Shanghai streets shouting: "I am a capitalist!"

The hint of discord among officers and men in the army came in a front-page editorial in Liberation Army Daily, the newspaper of Lin Biao's defence ministry. It indicated the discord centred on the determination of the Communist party to wield total control over the armed forces.

"RESPECT FIGHTERS" Lin has emerged as at least second to Mao Tse-tung in the hierarchy in the current Chinese political upheavals.

The editorial, carried in a broadcast dispatch by the New China news agency, urged the party cadres to abide by Mao's instructions in their work and

Leadership

Camp: 'We're eating our young'

TORIES IN TURMOIL

'Resign As Of Today'

OTTAWA (CP)—Gordon Churchill, former Conservative defence minister and a close friend of Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, called on Dalton Camp Wednesday to resign as president of the Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. Churchill, MP for Winnipeg South Centre and seat-mate of Mr. Diefenbaker, issued a copy of his telegram to the press. It said:

"Your immediate resignation as national president should be submitted to the national executive. You have flagrantly abused the privilege of your position in making a public attack on our leader."

"You have no authority from the membership at large for your action. For a national president to attempt to undermine and disrupt his party, under the specious guise of attacking the leadership of the Liberal party as well, is too obvious a subterfuge."

"As a private member of the party you may speak your mind as you see fit. As national president you have a duty to strengthen the party, not weaken it."

"You have taken advantage of your temporary position in a manner that admits of no excuse or explanation. Your resignation should be made effective today."

Mr. Diefenbaker was expected to reply to the Camp onslaught in a speech in Toronto today.

In Halifax Finlay MacDonald, national vice-president of the Progressive Conservative party, said Wednesday night he was prepared to resign if the majority of party members in the Atlantic provinces agreed with Gordon Churchill's call for the resignation of national president Dalton Camp.

Bonner Suggests Price Cut For B.C. Lumber

The British Columbia lumber industry might have to cut its prices in order to meet sharply changing world market conditions, Attorney-General Bonner warned Wednesday.

A drastic slump in lumber sales which has brought layoffs of hundreds of men and closure of some small companies in B.C. is "almost wholly beyond our control," he said in an interview.

Mr. Bonner said "ultra-nationalistic-minded Canadians" should be reminded that this nation's economy is directly related to foreign markets, and that there is little Canada can do to counteract the current tight money situation in the Western world.

HOUSING PROBLEM
The basic problem is an over-provision of housing in the United States, accompanied by a tight-money situation which brought about a very difficult credit structure so far as prospective buyers are concerned, he said.

There was in fact an actual scarcity of money available for mortgage financing in the U.S., he said.

This brought about a slowdown in construction, even though there is a rising demand for housing in the United States.

B.C. HIT
"The impact on B.C. has been to reduce the possibilities for sale in the U.S., and this is now beginning to back up in various facets of the industry," said the attorney-general.

Mr. Bonner declined to speculate on how long the lumber slump would last, but suggested the solution lay within the industry itself.

FLEXIBILITY NEEDED
B.C.'s prosperity was "not an automatic condition" but a "very hard won" achievement, and although the tight-money situation which the government has been talking about for the past 12 months "will produce some bite," industry can help "if it has enough leeway to adjust its prices abroad."

"We have to consider the necessity of being flexible. We must roll to meet the sharply changing market conditions," Mr. Bonner said.

Man in middle Diefenbaker:

'Monumental Indifference'

Addressing the Montreal Young Progressive Conservative Party Association, Mr. Camp reiterated statements made in Toronto Tuesday night and called for a reappraisal of the party leadership at next November's national convention in Ottawa.

Referring to Conservative Party leader Diefenbaker's statement that he plans to lead the party in the next general election, the national president said:

MANDATE
"I have absolutely no quarrel with that provided there is a mandate from the party. It's important that there is a mandate or there is a change."

Mr. Camp, a 41-year-old Toronto public relations man, raised an uproar from sectors in the Conservative party when he told the Toronto Junior Board of Trade that there never has been a more urgent time than now for an appraisal of the present leadership.

His statement touched off mixed reaction from fellow party members and resulted in a call from Gordon Churchill, defence minister in the former Diefenbaker government, that he resign as national president.

SEEKS RE-ELECTION
Mr. Camp told reporters prior to Wednesday night's meeting that he hadn't yet received Mr. Churchill's telegram but added: "I don't plan to resign as a result of the telegram."

He said he will stand for re-election as national president at the Ottawa convention Nov. 13-16 provided he feels that he has the support of the party delegates.

Asked if he would consider his re-election an endorsement of his position on the party leadership appraisal stand, Mr. Camp replied:

HEADING WEST
"Oh, yes."

Mr. Camp said he will speak in Charlottetown Saturday and then will return to Toronto before heading for meetings in Alberta. He hopes to visit all 10 provinces before the November convention.

Mr. Diefenbaker, just past his 71st birthday, had no spoken comment at Ottawa Wednesday but an aide said he showed "monumental indifference" to the Camp proposal. He recently predicted he will win a federal election next year.

Reappraisal Call Churns Reaction

MONTREAL (CP)—Dalton Camp, national president of the Progressive Conservative Party, said Wednesday night "we're becoming political cannibals and 'we're eating our young.'"

Grits Study Review Of the Top

OTTAWA (CP) — A resolution calling for periodic review of leadership is among a number of constitutional proposals that will go before next month's Liberal policy conference.

Senator John Nichol, president of the National Liberal Federation, said Wednesday constitutional proposals will be dealt with by a committee in public session during the Oct. 10-13 policy conference.

If recommended to plenary sessions it would be debated on the floor before a vote.

Senator Nichol said he believes Prime Minister Pearson favors the idea of periodic leadership reviews.

Marriage Fair Rang Few Wedding Bells

BIARRITZ, France (UPI) — It all started amid the confusion and publicity of the famous "Marriage Fair" but just like all fairy stories, it had a happy ending.

Francis Pomeroy, 32, and his wife Elise checked into a luxury hotel here Wednesday night to start their honeymoon as guests of the management. The luxurious setting was a far cry from the simplicity of the village of Esparron, in the Pyrenees, where Francis wooed and won Elise in the middle of one of Europe's biggest publicity stunts of the year.

Twenty thousand bachelors and spinsters crammed Esparron one weekend last May when Mayor Pierre Balagna announced the "Marriage Fair." The object, he said, was to find brides for lonely bachelors in the village where there hadn't been a wedding for five years.

Esparros got lots of publicity but not many wedding bells from the event, but the Pomeroy wedding, which took place Tuesday, was regarded as a step in the right direction.

Even more dividends may accrue from the fair. Pomeroy disclosed Tuesday, Mayor Balagna is himself engaged — although he won't say who the lucky girl is.

Chemainus Chamber Backs Training Plan

Hamilton stands with his boat

By JULIE MORAES

CHEMAINUS — Chamber of Commerce wants to form a Junior Achievement Organization here.

The Chemainus-Crofton Chamber recently approved the plan.

The B.C. Board of Governors of Junior Achievement have been asked to give their approval for the immediate establishment of a JA Organization in Chemainus.

Junior Achievement was first started in the Eastern United States in 1919 as a club for teen-agers who wished to learn about business.

It was started to parallel the 4-H clubs, which are clubs formed for youth interested in agriculture and farming.

The Junior Achievement Organization followed during the depression years, but regained strength after the war and has continued to grow ever since. It has expanded greatly in the last 10 years, especially in Canada.

Junior Achievement companies are firms formed by groups of teenage school students, who meet one evening a week between October and May.

The students must sell shares in the company in order to raise funds so that they may develop, manufacture and sell a product.

At the same time as they are making the saleable product, they are learning about all aspects of business, under the guidance of adult advisors, who advise them on matters of finance, production and sales.

At the end of the year the companies are liquidated and profits, if any, distributed amongst their shareholders.

There are 4,500 JA companies throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Junior Achievement has been established in Vancouver, Burnaby, and New Westminster for some time.

New communities establishing JA this year include Port Alberni, Kamloops, Lake Cowichan, and possibly Victoria.

Nanaimo started JA only last year and it was an immediate success.

MacMillan Bloedel Limited, Chemainus, will sponsor the one Junior Achievement Company to be established in Chemainus this year.

MacMillan Bloedel will supply the adult advisors, who will assist the achievers in setting up and operating the miniature corporation.

The Chamber of Commerce plans to take an active interest in the Junior Achievement activities and hopes to see further expansion next year which would include other sponsoring firms and the establishment of more junior companies.

Stafford Andrews, president of the chamber, applauded MacMillan Bloedel's interest in Junior Achievement Organizations. He indicated MacMillan

Bloedel would donate substantially toward the financing that is required in order to get the area organization and board of directors established.

Mr. Andrews also mentioned that the Canadian Chamber of Commerce is supporting the establishment of a national Junior Achievement Body, with headquarters in Canada, possibly at Toronto.

You build yourself a boat and sail.

That is what G. R. Hamilton is doing.

He got the idea of a cruising vessel from an article he read in 1950, and in 1954 he started the construction of a 30-foot sailing sloop.

It's meant for sailing in the shallow waters of the east coast and West Indies.

The boat has a shallow draft, keel and centreboard.

It has 562 square feet of sailing area.

"Actually it's a conventional sail boat design," said Mr. Hamilton.

"But it is wider and has seven tons of displacement."

The boat is equipped with a seven-horsepower diesel engine and the speed of the motor is equivalent to the sailing speed.

At full speed the boat does six knots.

There is both inside and outside steering.

"The fact that you can use it inside makes it convenient for weather changes," he said.

The sloop has large living quarters and it will be equipped with a small gas range, kitchen sink and the conveniences of a home.

The cabin's extreme width is 11 feet and it has full head space.

"I have a small micro TV with a five-inch screen," he said.

"We found on earlier cruises in small boats that we were lost with nothing."

"The next time we took a radio."

The boat can carry a party of four easily.

Mr. Hamilton has lived on the water for the past 20 years.

He owns the boat rental which has changed with the times.

Now fewer boats are rented out, and a gas tank has been installed.

The spot has become a stop for airplanes to load fuel.

Since 1960, with more and more young men flying, the number of planes landing at the marina has increased.

Mr. Hamilton has spent 12 years constructing his sloop.

Because summer months were his busiest periods he worked during the fall and winter.

"Actually it was something to do."

"I like working with tools and I was sort of inclined to water sports," he said.

"You get as much pleasure out of building a boat as sailing it."

"Half the fun of cruising is stopping at all the little marinas."

The Hamiltons plan to spend summer months exploring the west coast.

"The B.C. coast is such a wonderful place to wander around," he said. "We've been looking forward to it."

The boat is unfinished.

Many home fixtures are yet to be installed.

"I have no fixed date to get it done," said Mr. Hamilton.

"It's mobile now, and all I have to do is finish it off if I am so moved."

He said he has had little previous sailing experience.

"I am sure the boat could withstand more storms than I could," he said.

Kiddies Wait For Mommy 'To Wake Up'

DUBOIS, Wyo. (UPI)—The young wife of a Wyoming cowboy was stripped of her clothes, raped and murdered with a bullet in the back of the head, it was disclosed Wednesday. Her four small children stayed 24 hours around her body, "waiting for mommy to wake up."

A search was launched for a ranch hand who was missing from the bunkhouse where he lived near the murder scene.

The nude body of Mrs. Barbara Tilly, 24, was found on the floor of her home late Tuesday. She had been slain with a single shot from a .25 calibre pistol.

Fremont County Sheriff C. A. McDougall said Mrs. Tilly's four children—ranging in age from one to six—had been in the home in this mountain town of 600 population all day Tuesday without knowing their mother was dead.

He said the children tried to awaken Mrs. Tilly when they woke up at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday, then watched television saw the school bus as it went by and spent the rest of the day playing around the house, "waiting for mommy to wake up."

McDougall said the woman had been raped.

Her husband, Jim Tilly, about 30, was 20 miles away in the mountains at a cow camp, rounding up stray cattle at the time of the murder. McDougall said he had been there since last Saturday.

McDougall said a .25-calibre cartridge case was found under the body. The murder weapon was not found.

Provincialism Choking Education in Canada

By DENNIS BELL

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the Canadian Education Association said Wednesday narrow provincialism in education policies and programs must be smashed if Canada is to become a great nation.

Dr. H. T. Coultas of Edmonton, dean of the University of Alberta's education faculty, told the opening sessions of the CEA's 43rd annual convention:

"One of the great strengths in educational developments in Canada... has been the freedom of different provinces and of individual school systems to innovate and experiment."

Without losing this strength, we must find new ways of making optimum provisions for post-secondary education.

"Unless we break down much of our narrow provincialism, and approach common problems co-operatively, we shall not become the great nation we have the potential to be."

While Dr. Coultas spoke, Canada's 10 provincial education ministers discussed the same problems in closed sessions.

DISCUSS PLAN
Under the chairmanship of B.C. Education Minister Leslie Peterson, the ministers discussed formation of a national education office.

The ministers reached agreement in principle.

Dr. Coultas said rapid technological changes and automation have brought the various provincial administrations to a point where they must realize their concepts of a federal approach to education—under the British North America Act a provincial domain.

"I have felt growing concern, disquiet and frustration as I have read and heard reports by the mass media of the 'if' and 'maybe' plans of the ministers of education to set up an inter-provincial office of education."

He said a national education office would greatly enhance development of post-high school facilities in rural areas as well as leading to standard university and technical school entrance requirements and courses.

Dr. Harold S. Wyndham, director-general of education in New South Wales, Australia, told the 800 delegates that education of 700,000,000 literate people throughout the world is the biggest challenge facing education in the next 10 years.

Plans Go Ahead

On New College

The University of Victoria plans to call tenders this fall on a student housing project that will double present accommodation and create the campus first college.

Two residences for men are planned adjacent to Emily Carr and Margaret Newton halls for women on the east side of the campus, said a university spokesman.

A central "service area" with dining hall, coffee shop, offices for resident faculty and meeting rooms—will also be built.

PREPARE PLANS
The architectural firm of Skidall and Dennis is already preparing plans, said the spokesman.

He added that another building project that will create a second residential college is planned for next spring.

Plans to establish colleges at the university were announced 10 months ago by president Malcolm Taylor.

Dr. Taylor said the prime purpose of colleges would be to maintain small-school warmth and personal relationships between students and faculty.

They would combat the impersonality of big universities where students sometimes feel they have no more identity than their registration numbers.

Dr. Taylor said last year that six colleges are envisioned, each of them including 350 to 450 non-resident students.

CLOSENESS
Instead of being lost in the crowd, students will build their social lives around their college, eat together and get guidance from faculty living in the college.

The colleges will not be separate teaching units specializing in any subjects.

The provincial cabinet cleared the way for the new project this week by authorizing the university to apply for loans up to $2,300,000 from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

ENROLLMENT RISING
The university also has $1,800,000 toward capital works. Accommodation now is for only 141 women in two residences.

The university, which six years ago had only 1,415 students, now has an enrollment of about 3,500, and by the early 70s is expected to hit 5,000.

Cars Crunch

NANAIMO — $2,000 damage was the result of a motor vehicle accident when a car driven by Glen A. Kiebey, 254 Latham Street, Wellington was in an accident with a vehicle driven by Laurence Gargaro, R.R.1 Lady Smith.

The Kiebey vehicle was then hit by Sacha Singh of Duncan, who was driver of a truck.

The Chamber of Commerce plans to take an active interest in the Junior Achievement activities and hopes to see further expansion next year which would include other sponsoring firms and the establishment of more junior companies.

Stafford Andrews, president of the chamber, applauded MacMillan Bloedel's interest in Junior Achievement Organizations. He indicated MacMillan

Bloedel would donate substantially toward the financing that is required in order to get the area organization and board of directors established.

Mr. Andrews also mentioned that the Canadian Chamber of Commerce is supporting the establishment of a national Junior Achievement Body, with headquarters in Canada, possibly at Toronto.

MacMillan Bloedel Limited, Chemainus, will sponsor the one Junior Achievement Company to be established in Chemainus this year.

MacMillan Bloedel will supply the adult advisors, who will assist the achievers in setting up and operating the miniature corporation.

Vigas Lowers Nanaimo Rate

NANAIMO — An announcement was made Wednesday that Vigas will reduce its general service rate to customers in the Nanaimo area.

President of Vancouver Island Gas Co. Ltd., M. J. Walton, stated this is in line with company policy of providing a competitive utility gas service for Nanaimo and district at the lowest possible cost, and a desire to see an expanding use of gas in the residential, commercial and industrial market.

Geoff Matthews, managing director, said the reduced rates offer a competitive fuel price particularly in the home heating market.

China Changes Banking Sites
HONG KONG (AP) — China has withdrawn $261,000,000 from Hong Kong banks and deposited the sum to banks in Eastern Europe, a Hong Kong newspaper reports. The report was carried in the English-language tabloid Star, quoting "its own exclusive source."

Go to Gold River in Daylight

CAMPBELL RIVER — A newly-constructed public road to Gold River townsite is now open to the public throughout the day, each day of the week.

At the same time, Elk River Valley to Port Hardy and north is open on a limited-use basis, from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m.

The road between Gold River townsite and the mill site, at the head of Muchalat Inlet, a nine mile route, is closed during the day. The public cannot travel this road, to such places as Tahsis, until after 5 p.m. each day.

Union Disappointed After First Meeting

COURTENAY — Some agreement was reached, but union officials were generally disappointed after a meeting between IWA and Crown Zellerbach.

The meeting was called to resolve points in dispute, which sent more than 250 men off the job for nine days in the company's Comox Logging Division.

IWA president Max Salter said "I am very disappointed that the company is refusing to face up to the problems and resolve them in accordance with the contract."

A point on which he said agreement had been reached was waiting time, with the company agreeing to eliminate undue delay at the marshalling point, particularly when employees are forced off work by weather conditions.

In this regard the union suggested two ways by which this might be accomplished, but declined to elaborate on the methods suggested.

In the matter of safety supervision, it was agreed to set up a joint meeting of falling and bucking employees together with camp committee representatives.

The company indicated it is not fully aware of the conditions as outlined by the union.

The company declined to deal with the subject of combined job rate of pay at the local level.

It indicated it would refer the matter to Forest Industrial Relations and instruct the FIR to notify the local union.

On the question of job postings, Mr. Salter said the company had agreed to implement requirements under seniority clauses.

It will also make arrangements to post the bulletin notifying members of the crew of vacancies available.

A complete refusal to deal with the matter of travel time pay was alleged by the union.

Campbell River Board Studies Referendum

By JOY HUNTELEY

CAMPBELL RIVER — School trustees have studied the draft of a new referendum that could ease the overcrowded conditions in district schools.

The board needs sites for five elementary schools in the district, as well as additions to many present schools.

OCEAN GROVE

The board will send sketch plans to the education department, to get approval of a new school at Ocean Grove.

Architects have drawn up plans for three other elementary schools which the board hopes will be completed before next September.

EXPANSION POSSIBLE

Architect Jim Cariberg told the board plans could be expanded from two classrooms to a final 16 classroom unit.

This multimodule unit would include a library and activity room.

Another problem studied by the board is whether elementary schools should be expanded to take in all elementary grades, or whether older students would get better training if they went to major schools where large numbers would justify more intense teaching.

SMALL SCHOOLS

Trustees agreed with superintendent James Logie that primary children do better in small schools in their own areas.

Mr. Logie said this division between primary and elementary is now a concern everywhere, and is under study by many educators.

The central elementary school building is making good progress, and the board was told it should be in use before 1967.

SHIFTS WILL END

This will end the school shifts at Cedar School.

The provincial carpenters' dispute has halted other school construction. There is no relief in sight for two other schools on shift system.

Cumberland Will Grow When Boundaries Change

CUMBERLAND — Several acres will be added to the village when boundary extension is complete.

The village at present encompasses 142.2 acres.

Chairman of the village commission William Henderson said the area proposed to be taken in will include all the camp from Chinatown, on a line which runs through the old railway yards and generally follows the old railway track.

JAPANESE SCHOOL

Also to be included is an area back of Ulverston Avenue, which faces on the rear of the hospital, an area back of the new high school and a further area back of No. 5 Mine Road including the site of the former Japanese school.

In the latter area, 64 lots are included some of which have already been sold.

The plan for boundary extension has been under study for some time, and is now being implemented as a necessary move prior to presentation of a sewer bylaw.

The sewer bylaw, if passed, will allow construction of homes and buildings under the National Housing Act.

SEWERS LACKING

Some months ago a three-storey apartment house was reported planned, but later reports indicated funds for construction were not available because of the lack of sewers.

Cumberland Chamber of Commerce has been agitating for sewer installation, and has on file a letter from a real estate company which indicates possible construction of 70 homes and a shopping centre, once the sewer lines are complete.

SURVEY TOUGH

Work on the presentation of the boundary extension was slowed down because of survey difficulties and involved negotiations with a large company, holders of some land in the area concerned.

In keeping with the extension of boundaries and the construction expected to follow, the village commission has also adopted the National Building Code which will govern all future building in the village limits.

The move to extend boundaries follows closely on an announcement from Courtenay proposing to include new areas into their city limits.

School Unveiled Modern Unit for Wellington

By FRAN FLITTON

NANAIMO — A preliminary sketch of the new Wellington Junior High School was presented to the school board

Wednesday by Don Gough, principal of the proposed school. The location will be at Mexicana and Departure Bay Roads and target date is September, 1967.

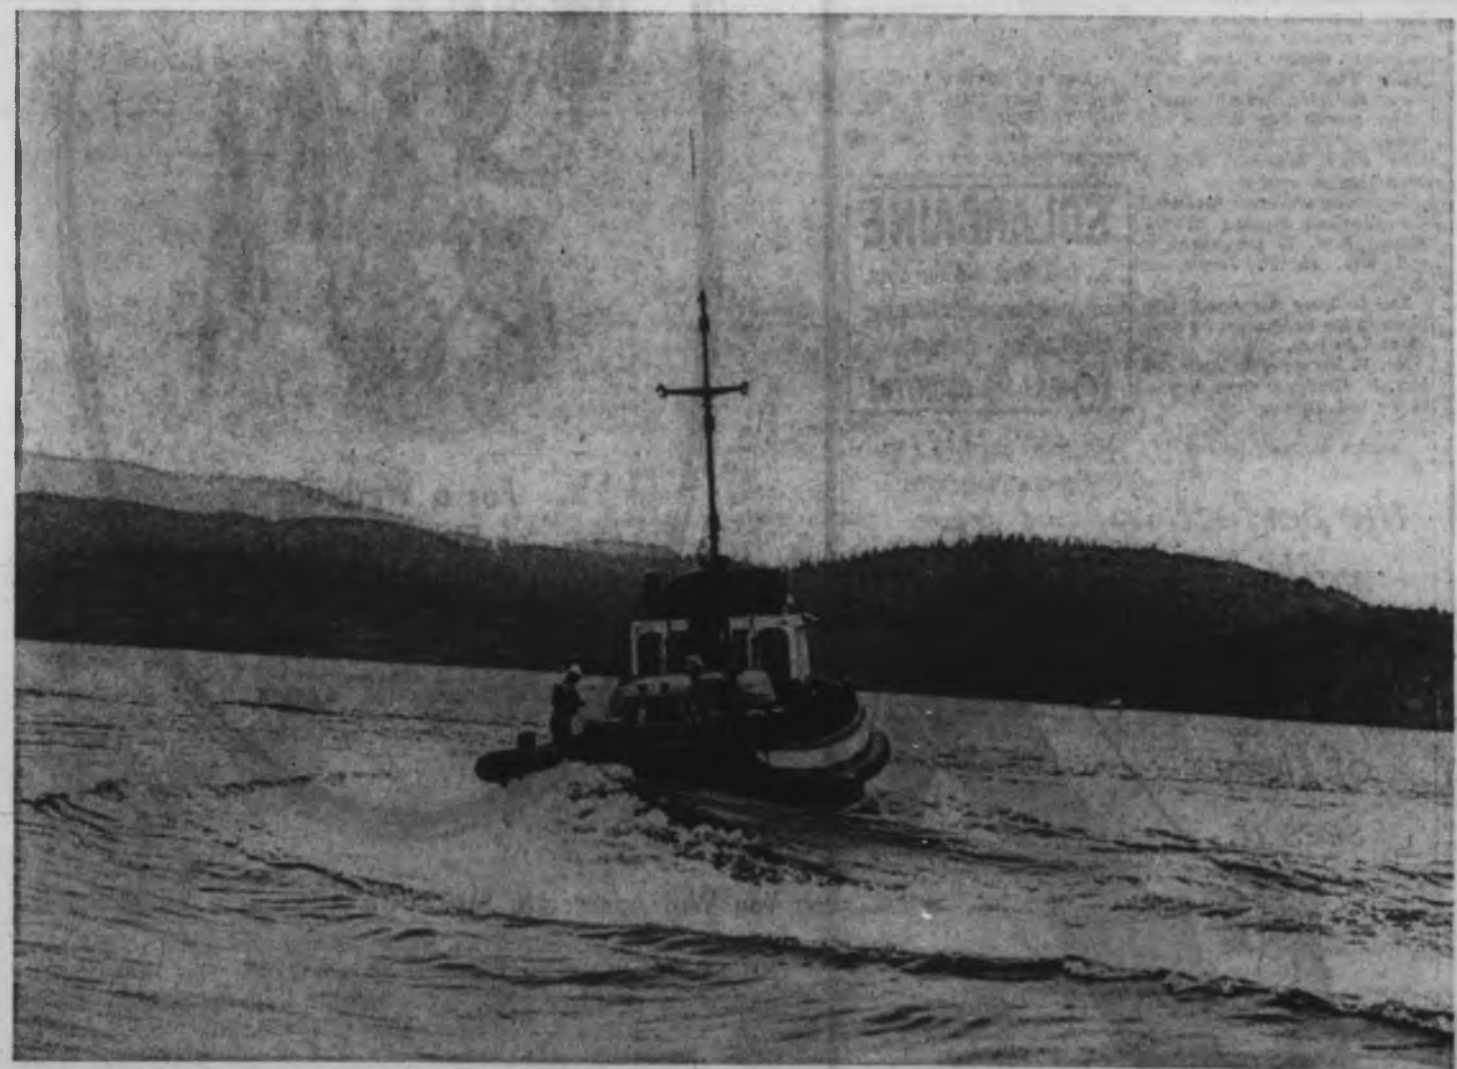

The sketch showed the school as being T shaped, very modern in design, and will house the latest teaching facilities.

Three hundred and thirty students are expected to be enrolled for the opening, increasing to a maximum of 900 students in the next few years. A report given by Trustee J.

E. Shook showed that a total of 9,143 students have enrolled in Nanaimo schools with 1,230 at the senior high, 958 at Woodlands Junior Secondary and 865 at Barbey Junior Secondary School.

The enrolment has topped last year's report by 1,100 and number of students is expected to climb until the end of September.

New Vessel Plies Waters Near Campbell River

New 50-foot harbor tug Seymour Crown is in service at Crown Zellerbach pulp and paper complex at Elk Falls near Campbell River. Tug will be used for berthing deepsea ships and general towing service in and around Duncan Bay. Seymour Crown is 51st vessel in the company's fleet.

Kilian

Duncan Musician To Lead Choirs

DUNCAN — Duncan musician Dr. Heinz Kilian will be the principal conductor in June when German choirs from the North Pacific Singers' Society (North Pacific Singers' Society) will hold a choir festival at Victoria.

Dr. Kilian, who is the leader of the Victoria Harmony Choir, said 350 singers from Victoria, Vancouver, Spokane, Portland and Seattle will take part, and a big men's choir from Los Angeles will be invited to join.

He said the tentative program calls for a concert of the massed choirs at the McPherson Playhouse with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

The same evening, a comparatively unknown choir work by Franz Schubert will be presented.

On another evening during the festival, the different choirs will sing their own programs.

The massed choir concert will include works by Orlando Di Lasso, Mozart, Brahms, Mendelssohn, Beethoven and a variety of German folk songs.

Dr. Kilian was approached a year ago by members of the Victoria Harmony Choir to take over the leadership of their group.

Birds and Bees Shoot the Breeze

DUNCAN—Cowichan School Board will invite family life education expert Dr. George Szasz to speak on his subject here next month.

Trustees in this district agreed to hear Dr. Szasz before making a decision whether or not to introduce Sex Education into the curriculum.

Dr. Szasz has organized this type of course in other districts.

Final Tally

DUNCAN — The 1966 provincial election will come to a close Monday when the last count will be made by Cowichan-Malahat Returning Officer C. R. Eldred and his staff.

The last count will include internal absentee and external absentee votes, the advance poll and those ballots cast under Section 80 which covers people who were not on the individual voters' lists, but were on the master list.

The four counts in this riding will include between 300 and 400 votes, but it will not alter considerably the Sept. 12 election returns when Robert Strachan, NDP, won with 5,470 votes over Social Credit Patrick Rogers, 4,265 and Liberal Joe Haddock, 747.

Condition Critical

CAMPBELL RIVER — Seven-month-old Shawn Olney is in critical condition after suffering serious head injuries in an accident near here Tuesday night.

Julian Olney, 28, of Saratoga Beach, died in the crash, eight miles south of Campbell River.

The baby was injured when his head crashed into the windshield.

The car left the road on a curve, sheared off a telephone pole, and finished in a ditch.

Parksville Plans Major July 1 Celebration

By MILDRED KURTZ

PARKSVILLE — Bob Flitton is chairman of a committee of the chamber of commerce which will work to make July 1 a big holiday here.

The special day will combine the Miss Parksville contest with other events, built around a centennial theme.

Helen Livingstone, the present Miss Parksville, recently gave publicity to the July 1 plans when she was a guest at the Kelowna Regatta.

Also at the chamber meeting: A report on the operation of the tourist bureau was read by tourist publicity chairman Sam Gough. This showed that 3,049 cars had stopped at the bureau containing 9,348 visitors. It was estimated that some 25 or 30 per cent more used the services of the bureau, but did not sign the visitor's book. A feature of the report was the breaking down of the figures to show the number of tourists from different areas.

B.C. provided a total of 4,418, the United States was next with 2,434, prairie provinces, 1,857; Ontario and Quebec together, 517; British Isles, 87, and other countries, 35.

The tourist bureau closed Sept. 18 after a busy summer. Longer hours of operation and better facilities won favorable comment from many visitors.

One unfavorable comment made by some was the washed-out appearance of the Maple Leaf flag fluttering from the flagpole.

This led to a discussion on where to obtain a fade-proof Canadian flag and the secretary was asked to make inquiries about the matter.

Also on tourism, Mr. Gough said the call of the coast publicity program had given this area excellent publicity, and he had high praise for the two young men from Victoria who inaugurated the project.

The possibility of hiring a permanent paid secretary was discussed and the final decision left to the incoming executive. The annual meeting and election of officers is set for Oct. 11.

Philippines' Parley Call:

'Let Asians Find Own Solutions'

Offer Made By PGE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Pacific Great Eastern Railway Wednesday made a new contract offer to 400 non-operating employees after receiving 48-hour strike notice.

General manager J. S. Broadbent wired Dave Chapman, spokesman for the Federation of PGE Employees, with the proposal:

"The PGE will pay the settlement finally reached with the national railways and guarantee each regular tradesman a minimum of 50 cents an hour (over two years) and each non-tradesman and apprentice a minimum increase of 40 cents." Chapman was not available for comment Wednesday.

Corrections Boss Says:

Oakalla Situation Nasty, Explosive

VANCOUVER (CP) — Selwyn Rockborough Smith, director of corrections for British Columbia, said Tuesday a "nasty, explosive" situation exists at Oakalla prison farm.

Mr. Smith made the remark during an interview following the recommendation by a coronor's inquest that a full-time psychiatrist be hired to spot inmates with suicidal tendencies. There have been 186 suicide attempts in less than three years at the prison, the inquest was told.

Mr. Smith said Oakalla is out-

He suggested a special Asian political organization be set up within the framework of the UN. (See also Page 3).

Marcos, first head of state to appear at the assembly's 1966 session, made a fervent appeal to U Thant to accept a second five-year term as UN secretary-general. He called the office of secretary-general "a unique priesthood of selfless service and sacrifice" and said the UN cannot "afford to be without Thant's wise and dedicated guidance."

BOLD EFFORT

He praised the Soviet Union for its successful mediation of last year's conflict between India and Pakistan and called for a bold Asian effort to emulate this in Viet Nam.

"The peace of Tashkent, while serving no special national interest, was a bold Asian effort."

Russia Charges U.S.-China Pact

HONG KONG (AP) — Travelers from China reported Wednesday new clashes between Red Guards and farmers in the Shanghai area, while China hinted there is discord and opposition in its "people's liberation army."

In a related development, Moscow published accusations that China and the United States have entered into a secret deal over Viet Nam. This was a switch, the Chinese have contended there is a U.S.-Soviet deal on Viet Nam.

The new clashes between the Red Guards and farmers were described as "intense and bloody." The visitors said Mme. Mao Tse-tung, first deputy leader of China's cultural revolution, had to go to Shanghai to restrain the guards. She is the wife of the Chinese Communist party chairman.

"I AM CAPITALIST!" Many bus drivers were reported to have been seen parading in Shanghai streets, shouting, "I am a capitalist!"

The hint of discord among officers and men in the army came in a front-page editorial in Liberation Army Daily, the newspaper of Lin Biao's defence ministry. It indicated the discord centred on the determination of the Communist party to wield total control over the armed forces.

"RESPECT FIGHTERS" Lin has emerged as at least second to Mao Tse-tung in the hierarchy in the current Chinese political upheavals.

The editorial, carried in a broadcast dispatch by the New China news agency, urged the party cadres to abide by Mao's instructions in their work and

'Resign As Of Today'

OTTAWA (CP) — Gordon Churchill, former Conservative defence minister and a close friend of Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, called on Dalton Camp Wednesday to resign as president of the Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. Churchill, MP for Winnipeg South Centre and seat-mate of Mr. Diefenbaker, issued a copy of his telegram to the press. It said:

"Your immediate resignation as national president should be submitted to the national executive. You have flagrantly abused the privilege of your position in making a public attack on our leader."

"You have no authority from the membership at large for your action. For a national president to attempt to undermine and disrupt his party, under the specious guise of attacking the leadership of the Liberal party as well, is too obvious a subterfuge."

"As a private member of the party you may speak your mind as you see fit. As national president you have a duty to strengthen the party, not weaken it."

"You have taken advantage of your temporary position in a manner that admits of no excuse or explanation. Your resignation should be made effective today."

Mr. Diefenbaker was expected to reply to the Camp onslaught in a speech in Toronto today.

In Halifax Finlay MacDonald, national vice-president of the Progressive Conservative party, said Wednesday night he was prepared to resign if the majority of party members in the Atlantic provinces agreed with Gordon Churchill's call for the resignation of national president Dalton Camp.

Bonner Suggests Price Cut For B.C. Lumber

The British Columbia lumber industry might have to cut its prices in order to meet sharply changing world market conditions, Attorney-General Bonner warned Wednesday.

A drastic slump in lumber sales which has brought layoffs of hundreds of men and closure of some small companies in B.C. is "almost wholly beyond our control," he said in an interview.

Mr. Bonner said "ultra-nationalistic-minded Canadians" should be reminded that this nation's economy is directly related to foreign markets, and that there is little Canada can do to counteract the current tight-money situation in the Western world.

The basic problem is an over-provision of housing in the United States, accompanied by a tight-money situation which brought about a very difficult credit structure so far as prospective buyers are concerned, he said.

There was in fact an actual scarcity of money available for mortgage financing in the U.S., he said.

This brought about a slowdown in construction, even though there is a rising demand for housing in the United States.

"The impact on B.C. has been to reduce the possibilities for sale in the U.S., and this is now beginning to back up in various facets of the industry," said the attorney-general.

Mr. Bonner declined to speculate on how long the lumber slump would last, but suggested the solution lay within the industry itself.

Reappraisal Call Churns Reaction

MONTREAL (CP) — Dalton Camp, national president of the Progressive Conservative Party, said Wednesday night "we're becoming political cannibals and we're eating our young."

Addressing the Montreal Young Progressive Conservative Party Association, Mr. Camp reiterated statements made in Toronto Tuesday night and called for a reappraisal of the party leadership at next November's national convention in Ottawa.

MANDATE

Referring to Conservative Party leader Diefenbaker's statement that he plans to lead the party in the next general election, the national president said:

"I have absolutely no quarrel with that provided there is a mandate from the party. It's important that there is a mandate or there is a change."

Mr. Camp, a 41-year-old Toronto public relations man, raised an uproar from sectors in the Conservative party when he told the Toronto Junger Board of Trade that there never has been a more urgent time than now for an appraisal of the present leadership.

His statement touched off mixed reaction from fellow party members and resulted in a call from Gordon Churchill, defence minister in the former Diefenbaker government, that he resign as national president.

SEEKS RE-ELECTION

Mr. Camp told reporters prior to Wednesday night's meeting that he hadn't yet received Mr. Churchill's telegram but added: "I don't plan to resign as a result of the telegram."

He said he will stand for re-election as national president at the Ottawa convention Nov. 13-16 provided he feels that he has the support of the party delegates.

Asked if he would consider his re-election an endorsement of his position on the party leadership appraisal stand, Mr. Camp replied:

HEADING WEST

Mr. Camp said he will speak in Charlottetown Saturday and then will return to Toronto before heading for meetings in Alberta. He hopes to visit all 10 provinces before the November convention.

Mr. Diefenbaker, just past his 71st birthday, had no spoken comment at Ottawa Wednesday but an aide said he showed "monumental indifference" to the Camp proposal. He recently predicted he will win a federal election next year.

Grits Study Review Of the Top

OTTAWA (CP) — A resolution calling for periodic review of leadership is among a number of constitutional proposals that will go before next month's Liberal policy conference.

Senator John Nichol, president of the National Liberal Federation, said Wednesday constitutional proposals will be dealt with by a committee in public session during the Oct. 10-13 policy conference.

It recommended to plenary sessions it would be debated on the floor before a vote. Senator Nichol said he believes Prime Minister Pearson favors the idea of periodic leadership reviews.

Crash Kills 23

BRISBANE (AP) — An Australian airliner crashed today in northeast Australia, and all 23 persons aboard were believed killed.

The plane, a jet-prop Viscount carrying 18 passengers and a crew of four, crashed near Winston, 715 miles north-west of Brisbane.

It was operated by the Ansett-Australian National Airlines and was flying from Mount Isa to Brisbane.

BIARRITZ, France (UPI) — It all started amid the confusion and publicity of the famous "Marriage Fair" but just like all fairy stories, it had a happy ending.

Francis Pommerehne, 32, and his wife Elise checked into a luxury hotel here Wednesday night to start their honeymoon as guests of the management. The luxurious setting was a far cry from the simplicity of the village of Esparrros, in the Pyrenees, where Francis wooed and won Elise in the middle of one of Europe's biggest publicity stunts of the year.

Twenty thousand bachelors and spinsters crammed Esparrros one weekend last May when Mayor Pierre Balagna announced the "Marriage Fair." The object, he said, was to find brides for lonely bachelors in the village where there hadn't been a wedding for five years.

Esparros got lots of publicity but not many wedding bells from the event, but the Pommerehne wedding, which took place Tuesday, was regarded as a step in the right direction.

Even more dividends may accrue from the fair, Pommerehne disclosed Tuesday. Mayor Balagna is himself engaged — although he won't say who the lucky girl is.

Philippines' Parley Call:

'Let Asians Find Own Solutions'

Offer Made By PGE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Pacific Great Eastern Railway Wednesday made a new contract offer to 400 non-operating employees after receiving 48-hour strike notice.

General manager J. S. Broadbent wired Dave Chapman, spokesman for the Federation of PGE Employees, with the proposal:

"The PGE will pay the settlement finally reached with the national railways and guarantee each regular tradesman a minimum of 50 cents an hour (over two years) and each non-tradesman and apprentice a minimum increase of 40 cents."

Chapman was not available for comment Wednesday.

Oakalla Situation Nasty, Explosive

VANCOUVER (CP) — Selwyn Rockborough Smith, director of corrections for British Columbia, said Tuesday a "nasty, explosive" situation exists at Oakalla prison farm.

Mr. Smith made the remark during an interview following the recommendation by a coroner's inquest that a full-time psychiatrist be hired to spot inmates with suicidal tendencies.

There have been 186 suicide attempts in less than three years at the prison, the inquest was told.

Mr. Smith said Oakalla is out-

Russia Charges U.S.-China Pact

HONG KONG (AP) — Travelers from China reported Wednesday a new pact between Red Guards and farmers in the Shanghai area, while China hinted there is discord and opposition in its "people's liberation army."

In a related development, Moscow published accusations that China and the United States have entered into a secret deal over Viet Nam. This was a myth. The Chinese have commended there is a U.S.-Soviet deal on Viet Nam.

The new pact between the Red Guards and farmers were described as "intense and bloody." The visitors said Mme. Mao Tse-tung, first deputy leader of China's cultural revolution, had to go to Shanghai to restrain the guards. She is the wife of the Chinese Communist party chairman.

"I AM CAPITALIST!" Many bus drivers were reported to have been seen parading in Shanghai streets, shouting: "I am a capitalist!"

The hint of discord among officers and men in the army came in a front-page editorial in Liberation Army Daily, the newspaper of Lin Biao's defence ministry. It indicated the discord centred on the determination of the Communist party to wield total control over the armed forces.

"RESPECT FIGHTERS" Lin has emerged as at least second to Mao Tse-tung in the hierarchy in the current Chinese political upheaval.

The editorial, carried in a broadcast dispatch by the New China news agency, urged the party cadres to abide by Mao's instructions in their work and

CAMP CAUSES TORY TURMOIL

'Resign As Of Today'

OTTAWA (CP) — Gordon Churchill, former Conservative defence minister and a close friend of Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, called on Dalton Camp Wednesday to resign as president of the Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. Churchill, MP for Winnipeg South Centre and seat-mate of Mr. Diefenbaker, issued a copy of his telegram to the press. It said:

"Your immediate resignation as national president should be submitted to the national executive. You have flagrantly abused the privilege of your position in making a statement on our leader."

"You have no authority from the membership at large for your action. For a national president to attempt to undermine and disrupt his party, under the specious guise of attacking the leadership of the Liberal party as well, is too obvious a subterfuge."

"As a private member of the party you may speak your mind as you see fit. As national president you have a duty to strengthen the party, not weaken it."

"You have taken advantage of your temporary position in a manner that admits of no excuse or explanation. Your resignation should be made effective today."

Mr. Diefenbaker was expected to reply to the Camp onslaught in a speech in Toronto today.

In Halifax Finlay MacDonald, national vice-president of the Progressive Conservative party, said Wednesday night he was prepared to resign if the majority of party members in the Atlantic provinces agreed with Gordon Churchill's call for the resignation of national president Dalton Camp.

Bonner Suggests Price Cut For B.C. Lumber

The British Columbia lumber industry might have to cut its prices in order to meet sharply changing world market conditions, Attorney-General Bonner warned Wednesday.

A drastic slump in lumber sales which has brought layoffs of hundreds of men and closure of some small companies in B.C. is "almost wholly beyond our control," he said in an interview.

Four Courses Open to Victoria

Is a Tourist Czar the Answer?

By A. H. MURPHY

If Victoria is going honky-tonk, let it have topless go-go dancers among the totems in Thunderbird Park and a girls show in Bastion Square, A. G. Coning, former chairman of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce spring flower festival committee, suggested Wednesday.

But even such an attempt would seem pathetic in the eyes of Americans who are artists at the game, Mr. Coning fears.

In a statement which will be the subject of intensive study and discussion at the executive level of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, he recommended the appointment of a strong governing committee completely detached from the profit motive in the tourist industry.

Such a committee would be the only recipient of civil grants promoting the industry, and would have a strong city representative as part of its membership.

It would aim to preserve the best of what Victoria has and plan for the future. It would enforce the canons of good taste and give some overall control to what now was a mixed-up, chaotic situation.

And, said the Coning statement: "Why not a tourist commissioner?"

This is the year of decision, the brief continues. It is too late to do anything about 1966, and it may be too late to do more than talk about 1967, but the city should be in the active planning stage for 1968.

"There are four courses open to us," the statement said.

- Concentrate on "Ye Olde."
- Become honky-tonk.
- Remain a point of entry or departure for Vancouver Island and B.C. in general.
- Create a new tourist image retaining the best and ruthlessly banishing the cheap and tawdry.

"We are no longer 'Ye Olde'."

Mr. Coning said, "We are unable to provide authenticity to background to do this properly. Old ladies in mob caps drinking tea from Chelsea cups on the Empress lawn are not authentic, nor are Beefeaters bewildered among the California license plates."

The honky-tonk atmosphere was out, Mr. Coning thought. Victoria could never do it properly and besides, nobody was going to drive here from San Francisco to see in Victoria what they regard as their native California fauna.

Victoria is already half-way home in establishing itself as a point of entry and departure. It throws all its propaganda at visitors when they disembark. The question was, did that often them up to enjoy the delights of the city, or drive them up-Island to the "aesthetic joys of castles built of beer bottles."

"If we are going to embark and disembark, let us do it properly," the statement suggested. One way would be for the provincial government to supplement the Black Ball Ferry Service, which was quite inadequate at tourist peak.

"If we are going to create a new tourist image, it must be done now. Tomorrow will be too late as the discordant, the jangling and the tawdry is moving in — and not slowly. Furthermore, the idea also still enjoys a measure of support from those who commend our natural beauty while they drool for a fast buck," the statement said.

Rockland 'No' May Trade Elderly for Addicts

Haigh

Rockland Avenue residents who rejected the idea of a guest home for elderly people in the neighborhood discovered Wednesday night that the big house had been bought by Harry Haigh for use as a drug addict treatment centre.

Mr. Haigh, a scrap dealer who gave up another house on Rockland some time ago amid charges that he ran it as a junkyard, announced the move on an open-line radio program. He said he would rent 1715

Rockland to Vern Minow of Vancouver to open a Halfway House in Victoria. Mr. Minow is a former drug addict who has operated the controversial Halfway House in Vancouver for more than a year, to provide treatment for addicts.

FIRST PETITION

The purchase was confirmed Wednesday night by Sonja Rosenbeck who, with her husband Henrik, operates Begbie Rest Home at 1803 Belmont.

The Rosenbecks bought the house on Rockland in February of this year to run "as a guest home for middle-aged and elderly people," Mrs. Rosenbeck said.

They had first petitioned 20 of the nearest neighbors and obtained 13 signatures in favor of the home, she said.

A counter-petition was then circulated, Mrs. Rosenbeck said, and some of the signers of the original petition removed their signatures of approval.

F. A. Davidson, welfare administrator for Victoria, confirmed that the Rosenbecks had not been able to get approval for their venture.

"The Rockland area is an ideal setting for elderly people," he said. "It is quiet and restful."

GOOD OPERATION

"As for the Rosenbecks," he said, "we will support their efforts to establish a home because we know their type of operation. It is very good. But the people in the Rockland area concerned feel the area should keep in character as an exclusive residential area."

Rev. H. T. Allen of James Bay United Church said the Rosenbecks had brought the situation to his attention when they were unable to get permission to run a guest home.

"It sounded to me like something that should be welcomed and encouraged in the community," he said. "I've seen the Begbie Rest Home, and it's spotless. These people are doing a humanitarian job. It seems strange that they should be blocked."

CONDITIONAL

Mrs. Rosenbeck said the sale of the property was conditional on the Rosenbecks not getting permission to open up a guest home.

"If we don't have permission by Friday," she said, "the deal goes through and the house belongs to Harry Haigh."

Mr. Haigh Wednesday night confirmed that he had offered the eight-bedroom house to Mr. Minow. He said the $50,000 house would be "a great place" for either a rest home or a halfway house.

GOVERNMENT MAN

"I can't see how Waldo Skilling can be against the idea, because he is a government man and the government supports the Halfway House in Vancouver," Mr. Haigh said.

Mr. Skilling lives next door at 1721 Rockland.

Mr. Davidson said that Mr. Haigh's statement about the use of the house was "premature."

"This would also have to be approved," he said.

TRICKY TECHNIQUE

Halfway House in Vancouver, which Mr. Minow has been operating for more than a year, was without financial support for nine months. The provincial government is reported to have granted the operation $1,500 for a month and to have continued the payment.

In treating the drug addicts withdrawal drugs are said to be used, a method which many experts say is a debatable and tricky technique.

A long-time defender of the area's character, Russell Kerr, president of Kerr & Stephenson real estate, lives at 1626 Rockland. He was in the Cariboo and could not be reached Wednesday for comment.

Mrs. Waldo Skilling said she knew nothing about any petition or any signatures against establishment of the guest home.

Warm Spell To Stay For Awhile

Greater Victorians may luxuriate for two days more in the magic of delayed summer weather. The official high temperature Wednesday was 74, which means that many parts of Victoria were warmed to the low 80s. The weather office reports the sunny, warm days are due to last at least until Friday. Today's forecast high is 76.

U.S. Idle on Race Problem

'Solution May Lie In Canada'

By BILL STAVDAL

The United States hasn't yet taken serious steps to solve its racial problem, said the man who in 1962 became the first Negro to enrol at the University of Mississippi, and who survived a shotgun ambush last summer.

"This is a serious business, but the U.S. hasn't taken it seriously," said the man who in 1962 became the first Negro to enrol at the University of Mississippi, and who survived a shotgun ambush last summer.

He addressed an overflow crowd of more than 1,500 in the University of Victoria gymnasium, nine-tenths of them teen-agers and university students. About 400 were turned away.

ULTIMATE ANSWER

Responses to Negro unrest in the U.S. have been "to ameliorate the situation and quiet the disturbance," said Mr. Meredith.

"We have not made an effort to understand the situation and seek a permanent solution."

At one point in his hour-long address Mr. Meredith said:

"The ultimate answer to the racial question rests with the whites."

BACKGROUND — Background to the problem, he said, is that "Western civilization is built on a premise of white superiority."

"Will we continue with the premise of white superiority, or will we move toward our ideals of equality and equal justice?" Mr. Meredith said he believes 90 per cent of whites in

Crowd of 1,500 jams university gymnasium to hear Meredith

Mississippi want the old system changed, but are powerless because the system is "self-perpetuating."

He said he is determined to improve the lot of Negroes.

"I want to be a part of society. Either society will destroy me or I will destroy society," he said.

He told a sympathetic audience several times that the blame for the racial situation audience rests with the white man.

He went unchallenged when he stated:

"No Negro is capable of violence. Only whites are capable of violence. Only whites have the facilities for violence."

During a question period he said that brick-throwing and setting fires are not violence.

"SOMETHING ELSE"

"That's vandalism and arson," he said. "Violence is something else."

In an earlier interview on his arrival at Patricia Bay, he defined violence as "... like in Grenada, Mississippi, where townspeople and the sheriff beat (Negro) children with axes-handles."

He said in the interview that he was prepared to meet violence with violence.

"TOUGH COUNTRY"

"I like to think of myself as an average American, and America is a tough country."

During his evening address he suggested that a Canadian might someday make a study of America's racial problem that would be acceptable to both sides.

"It could be that Canada will lay the groundwork for the solution to the racial problem in the U.S.," he said.

HOOTS OF DERISION

An elderly listener rose and suggested a solution to the racial problem in the U.S.: Ship all the Negroes to Africa.

After hoots of derision died down, Mr. Meredith replied:

Bullet Cuts Artery

Shot in Shoulder, Young Hunter Dies in Minutes

A young hunter died near Kangaroo Road early Wednesday morning, minutes after being hit in the shoulder by a .303 rifle bullet.

Lawrence Daniel Watts, 17, of 286 Atkins Avenue, a member of a family of gun enthusiasts, died after the bullet from a friend's gun severed an artery in his shoulder.

Colwood RCMP were still investigating details of the tragedy, but it appeared Daniel Watts had been trying to flush a deer out of thick brush to enable his hunting partners, Jim Henderson, 17, of Lippincott Road, and Wayne John Wellman, 19, of 1115 Donna, to get a shot.

When no deer showed, Mr. Watts started back to where the two partners were. As he came in sight, Jim Henderson lowered his gun and it went off. The shot killed Watts. Police estimated he died in between three and four minutes. It was 7:15 a.m.

Mr. Wellman immediately raced for help, running a half-mile through the thick brush to Kangaroo Road, where he rushed to the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Henderson.

"He told me his buddy had been badly shot and was bleeding terribly. He said to get an ambulance," Mrs. Henderson said.

She phoned the RCMP, then grabbed some towels, hoping to staunch the flow of blood. Mrs. Anderson is a part-time practical nurse.

boy's pulse and realized it was too late.

She said both the boys were very helpful and praised Mr. Wellman's efforts in guiding people to the scene.

"He must have been up and down that road at least five times, guiding the police and the ambulance," she said.

She said Wellman arrived at her house at 7:40 a.m.

Friends' Help in Vain

The boy's father, Lawrence Watts, is known as one of the finest skeet shooters in the city and his mother is an award-winning skeet shooter. Both are excellent rifle shots.

Daniel Watts was an enthusiastic outdoorsman and fisherman.

A post mortem is to be performed today and an inquest will be opened in Sand's Chapel, Colwood, at 10 a.m. Friday.

Mr. Watts is survived by his parents and a sister, Mrs. Jean Chappier of Victoria.

His paternal grandparents are W. Watts, Happy Valley, and Mrs. M. Camfield, Victoria. His maternal grandmother is Mrs. J. Cleve of Victoria.
